Kochani,

This is not easy to describe the house I lived in is no more - every house in Warsaw was either destroyed or damaged. There is lots of food in stores, the best cakes in this world at D. Blikle (since 1839) also people have no money.

Private small business is thriving - one can live here for $15,000 a year like a King. Every child is learning languages & they look well cared for & nicely dressed.

Saw good painters in the old city & bought a miniature of the citadel.

A few elegant big hotels have everything I like N.Y.

We will visit Warsaw ghetto now, I saw it during one week day & night. Tonight we'll be
