18 APRIL 1944

reading two sweet letters from you <sup>Tuesday</sup> ~~Wednesday~~.
My Sweetheart, oh they answered my thoughts.

I was just lying on my bed during the few spare moments we have at noon after church and was thinking of you and Laura. I was reliving many happy moments we had together and was particularly thinking of how I used to rest on the studio couch in our little home after eating one of your delicious lunches. Then you would come in as soon as you cleared the dishes off the table and I would rest my head in your lap while you played with my hair. You used to braid my hair and tie it in knots as we chatted peacefully and lovingly. Those moments will always live in my memory as among the sweetest in my life. I thought that it was

As I was lying on my bed and dreaming of you the mail clerk called out "Mail Call" & I was up in a flash. Soon I was reading two sweet letters from you ~~too~~ it seemed almost as though they answered my thoughts. One was a V-Mail of April 3rd and one an Air Mail of April 9th (Easter Sunday). This Air Mail letter was postmarked the 10th so it came across in only 8 days. These were the first letters from you in several days & although there was quite a gap in your letters there surely must be some more coming to fill in the gap, although you say you missed writing a few days while Mother C. was ill. I hope that she is fully recovered now.

Honey, you said that it was three years ago the third of April that we announced our engagement. Maybe I am wrong but I thought that it was three years on the fourth. Regardless of the date I would do it all over again today, tomorrow, or the next day if I could and would enjoy and treasure each moment just as clearly as I treasure every moment in my memory that we spent together. I know that I could not tell you how much I loved you then, and now I find it much harder to find words to express my feelings even in a small way. I love you more and more each day, each month, and each year until I now fully realize that I live only for you and Laura. I live only to be with you again so that I may try in my humble and awkward way to show you how much I love you and adore you, and to do my utmost to provide you and Laura with the home, necessities, and luxuries that you want & rightly deserve.

If I had it all to do over again I know that I would do more to make you happy and I would treasure every moment that I could be with you. Even little seemingly unimportant things would now be more sweet and lovely. I miss so many little kindnesses and little characteristics of yours that only I know. In fact, I would feel very jealous of anyone other than Laura who might even notice any of the characteristics impress you that I know as setting you entirely apart from anyone else in the world.

Darling, you always were just a little more than an average sweetheart; you were more than a perfect wife; and you were an ideal mother. You entirely amazed me with your wonderful accomplishments as a wife, housekeeper, cook, and home economists, and at the same time you remained a perfect sweetheart. Then when Laura came, again I was to be amazed and even more amazed at your ability to care for Laura in addition to all your previous duties and only grow more lovely, more wonderful, and more beautiful. Even after becoming both a mother and a housewife you never stopped being my sweetheart. No wonder I love you three times as much as I did when we were married.

I love you more than anything else in the world, Shirley, and someday in the not too distant future I hope to show you in a small way how much I do love you. Words are so inadequate to express my love of you, but, darling always remember that I love you and am with you in thought even though we may be separated by a country or an ocean.

Take good care of yourself and of that precious blue-eyed daughter of ours. I am trusting in you, darling. Think of me as I do of you and we need have no worry whatsoever of our future together - we will resume our happy life together with more consideration of each other and will be even happier than we were before. We will grow up with Laura and have a gay time together.

I will be awaiting the Easter Snapshots with the impatience of a kid waiting for vacation from school. And, darling, do your best to get me the large pictures that I have been requesting.

My darling, I hope this letter is received in the same mood as which I am writing it and hope that in a small way it conveys to you the love that I have for you. It is so hard for me to write good letters even, let alone love letters, when I am so restricted in what I can write and am conscious that one of our unit officers is going to read every word and remember everything I write. I don't mind telling anyone that I love my wife, but we have already found that in our small unit our officers do discuss our letters and do form opinions of us from the letters we write home. Well, it is our own private love affair, so I am using the blue envelope to escape unit censorship. The letter will be censored by the base censor, who is entirely unknown & some distance away, but it will remain more personal than a letter I may write & send through our regular censor.

We are now allowed only two blue envelopes each month, but I certainly intend to use them.

Goodbye now my darling wife and precious little daughter. Daddy sends you both all his love and promises to remain yours forever.

Your adoring husband
& daddy,
Cliff

P.S.

WRITE SOON & OFTEN.
