

A black and white photograph showing the entrance to the Sobibor concentration camp. In the foreground, a grassy field with some low-hanging branches in the bottom left corner. A set of railway tracks runs horizontally across the middle ground. To the left of the tracks, a simple wooden signpost stands with a white rectangular board that reads "SOBIBÓR". Behind the sign, a tall wooden fence runs along the edge of the camp. Beyond the fence, several wooden buildings are visible, including a larger barracks-like structure and smaller outbuildings. Bare trees stand behind the buildings against a clear sky.
