'Motives' Seen in London Invitation

Arab Leaders Split On Issue of Council

(From a Staff Correspondent)

A series of ingenious "ifs" emerging from the proposed Arab political mission to London is contained in "Al Jamia Al Islamia" as the latest contribution towards the Arab press controversy on the subject.

Sheikh Suleiman Al Farouki, blind editor of that paper, reads motives into the Government's offer which, he says, was primarily intended to split the Arab camp over the issue.

If the Government's invitation were rejected, it would give the Colonial Office a pretext for not proceeding with the Legislative Council plan, and during the interval the Jewish population would increase so as to enable British policy to be adjusted to Jewish interests.

If the Arabs agreed, the Government would invite a Jewish deputation to a Round-Table Conference with the Arabs. If the Arabs refused to meet Jewish leaders, the Colonial Office would again be in a position to proclaim Arab non-cooperation as an excuse for deferring the scheme. If they agreed, then it would indicate tacit Arab acceptance of British policy hitherto pursued.

Arab Party To Meet

The Executive Committee of the Palestine Arab Party will meet today in Jerusalem to discuss the proposed Legislative Council and the delegation to the Colonial Office. Representatives of the Arab parties will meet tomorrow in Jerusalem to choose the members of the delegation.

PEACEFUL ANTI-SEMITISM URGED IN RUMANIA (Palcor)

BUCHAREST, April 12.— Less militant methods are urged by a section of Secessionist anti-Semites which has been formed as an outcome of the split in the anti-Jewish terrorist organization.

The secessionists oppose the present method of conducting attacks upon Jewish communities, and are striving to create an international federation in order to propagate "peaceful anti-Semitism."

Their Children, Too, Must Suffer

(Palcor and PTA)

BERLIN, Monday.— According to a report from Nuremberg, the Jewish community there transferred Jewish children to their own schools upon learning of the decision taken by the German educational authorities to expel Jewish pupils from elementary schools.

The Nuremberg Municipality is now said to be planning to expel Jewish students from secondary schools, contrary to the law. Herr Julius Streicher approves the step.

Municipalities throughout Bavaria have begun to segregate Jewish pupils in separate schools. The order barring Jewish children from German schools after Easter is being somewhat modified in other parts of the country by the gradual assumption of education by Jewish communal organizations.

The Holy City on Easter Day

Jerusalem's manifold Easter ceremonies began on Holy Saturday evening with the quaint but profoundly devout service of the Abyssinians on the roof of St. Helena's Chapel, in which they seek to remind the worshippers of how the news of the Empty Tomb was brought to the sorrowing disciples, and how they then went out to see for themselves if it were true, returning with joy to cry repeatedly to one another, "Christ is risen."

Glittering ceremonial umbrellas opened out under the pale light of the Pascal moon, barbaric splendour in the gold, crown-like head-dresses of the abbot and acolytes, softly sung hymns accompanied by the haunting throb of huge drums and the silvery tinkle of the antique sestra, gave the service so unusual a setting that the stranger was likely to forget that this was no outlandish theatrical spectacle but sober and devout worship of God in the manner familiar to one of the oldest Christian nations.

Easter at the Sepulchre

At midnight the Church commonly known as the "Holy Sepulchre"

and less commonly called the "Resurrection," was ablaze with lights and crowded with people of every race and tongue for the beginning of the moving ceremonies which continued without interruption till late the next day.

The Easter Gospel was proclaimed at the Holy Tomb in successive services conducted by the Orthodox Patriarch-elect, the Armenian Patriarch and the Latin Patriarch, while the Copts, Syrians and Abyssinians were worshipping in other parts of the building. The many processions of Easter morning concluded at noon with that of the Orthodox who as they led the Patriarch-elect through the streets from the Patriarchate to the Anastasis (Church of the Resurrection) were welcomed with clanging bells, showers of flower petals and rose water, and repeated cries of Christos Aneste (Christ is risen.)

Mgr. Timotheos was accompanied by the Anglican Bishops of Jerusalem and Winchester, the Consul-General of Greece and Rumania, and a large number of distinguished Orthodox pilgrims including General Plastiras, one time political leader in Greece, and a number of Greek naval

Sanctions Committee Is Standing By

(Reuter/Wireless and Reuter)

The settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute will be formally discussed before the Committee of Thirteen at Geneva by Senor de Madariaga on Thursday, April 16. The Spanish chairman of the committee is at present engaged in conversing with the Italian authorities to ascertain their attitude to a truce.

It was decided at the meeting of the Committee last week, on the motion of Mr. Eden, to ask Senor Vasconcellos to warn the "Sanctions" Committee of Eighteen to be ready to meet at any moment, possibly on Friday next, should the conciliation efforts break down.

Mr. Eden commented sharply on the action of the International Red Cross Committee, in the course of last week's meeting of the thirteen League states, when it declined to hand over documentary material for which the League had asked in connection with charges against Italy of violating the laws of warfare. He said that he could not see that neutrality, which the Red Cross advanced as its reason for not giving the information, could possibly be involved.

Ethiopia Replies to Committee

Ethiopia's official response to the League's appeal not to use poison gas was received by the Secretary-General on Sunday. ### Egypt Pleased With Attitude of Britain

(From Our Own Correspondent)

CAIRO, Monday. — The appreciable progress made at the last few meetings of the British and Egyptian missions, prior to the Easter and Shem-el-Nessim holiday adjournment, has aroused great optimism as to the prospects of a treaty.

The Egyptian mission are reported to be agreeably surprised at the reasonable attitude with which the British negotiators, and particularly the military element, have been prepared to discuss the Egyptian objections to garrisons in Cairo and Alexandria.

It is rumoured that a solution of this thorny problem has been found in the fact that the Egyptians will not regard R.A.F. units as a garrison and that though they object to having British soldiers in the Kasr-el-Nil and Abbassia barracks, they will not mind airmen at Heliopolis and Helouan.

HIGH COMMISSIONER AT FRONTIER FORCE REVIEW

His Excellency the High Commissioner will review the Trans-Jordan Frontier Force at the aerodrome at Samakh at 10 o'clock this morning.

Spectators will be admitted to the ground, and should arrive not later than 9.45, after which time the road from Samakh to Samra, running just south of the Trans-Jordan Frontier Force Camp, will be closed to all traffic.

Members of Parliament To Visit Levant Fair

(From Our Own Correspondent)

LONDON, April 10 (Air Mail). — A deputation of Members of Parliament will be visiting Palestine in connection with the Levant Fair of 1936. It will consist of Wing Commander James, Mr. Morgan Jones, Mr. H. Holdworth and Captain Strickland. They will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Janner and probably another Member of Parliament as well. They will be arriving in Palestine on May 20 and will leave on May 31.

The Palestine Government has appropriated LP.100 to the fund for prizes to be awarded to the best agricultural exhibit at the Levant Fair Agricultural Exhibition.

Fire Fighters Sans Fire Engines

The lack of proper fire-fighting facilities in Jerusalem was evidenced for the second time in four days when on Sunday evening two shops on Jaffa Road not far from Zion Circus were destroyed by fire.

The fire broke out at about 7 o'clock in the "Ahrayut" shoe store belonging to the Shoemaker Brothers and lasted for about three hours until all of the goods and fixtures in the shoe shop and in the neighbouring dress shop belonging to Mr. Sachs were completely destroyed.

Qualified military experts do not believe that the Negus's armies have been completely routed in the north, in spite of the withdrawal of Ras Mulugheta's forces.

A proclamation was made by Marshal Badoglio from Makalle on Easter Day abolishing slavery in all Italian occupied territories and offering freedom to any slaves who wished to escape from other parts of Ethiopia.

Malta Soon to Become British Crown Colony

(From Reuter and BOWP.)

LONDON, Monday.— Malta will shortly have the status and administration of a British Crown Colony.

According to the "Morning Post's" political correspondent, this step is due to recent developments in the Mediterranean, notably to the nature and intensity of Italian propaganda directed against Great Britain.

This has rendered even a modified form of self-government impossible in the immediate future. Italian military movements also have necessitated the concentration of large military and air forces at Malta, virtually converting the island into a fortress.

There has been no surprise in London at the wildly irresponsible

After Midnight

According to late wireless messages, Italian troops have occupied the Ethiopian half of Gallabat. A British Customs House, Army and Air Force detachments, are quartered in the Sudanese half of the town.

It was announced in Rome yesterday that an Italian envoy — not a delegation — without plenipotentiary powers will come to Geneva on Tuesday to discuss the possibility of carrying on peace negotiations with Senor de Madariaga. The name of the envoy was not published. There is a belief current that he will be Baron Aloisi. It is emphasized that the Italian envoy will not present Signor Mussolini's peace conditions, but is coming on the invitation of the Committee of 13 to hear the latter's proposals, although the Duce would have preferred to see Senor de Madariaga in Rome.

M. Sarraut, the French Premier, conferred with the Italian Ambassador last night and afterwards saw the President of the Republic.

The regulations for liquidation of the Phoenix Insurance Company of Austria grant no satisfaction to policy holders of the company's foreign branches, which has led to the Czechoslovakia government's lodging a claim for damages from Government, whilst Yugoslavia has lodged a vigorous protest threatening economic reprisals.

The Syrian Pourparler

WHAT INDEPENDENCE WILL MEAN

(From Our Damascus Correspondent)

THE future of Syria depends largely on the wisdom and diplomacy of the Syrian delegation which is at present negotiating with the French Government. The delegation is mixed, both in the ages and political opinions of its members. Public opinion has insisted that it shall have a strong (four to two) Nationalist majority. Although officially the delegation is free to act as it thinks best, in actual fact there is little doubt as to the opinions it will voice on the various questions to be discussed.

Problem of Unity

Syria's greatest problem is contained in the question of "Unity." The nationalists attitude towards this is patent. It argues that a country like Syria, with a population of less than three million, cannot hope to survive a period of economic and political troubles if it is divided into four autonomous districts. This sub-division means political weakness, duplicate taxation, and a good deal of red tape and inefficiency. Therefore the Nationalists demand a united country under one government.

The French will probably have no objection to Alouite, Alexandrette, and Djebel Druze being united with Syria after a favourable plebiscite. But will they also agree to give back to Syria the districts now joined to the Lebanon?

Nationalist leaders say that they are quite willing to leave these districts within the Lebanon if France will award that country a treaty similar to that of Syria — which means a cancellation of the mandate and the restoration of Lebanese independence. But Syria will never relinquish her claim so long as the Lebanon remains under mandate.

A DEGREE IN ACCOUNTANCY

Secretaryship, Cost Accountancy, Shipping, Banking, Insurance or Bookkeeping is essential for a highly paid executive position. Examinations can be taken in Palestine and success guaranteed by postal training. The School of Accountancy is the leading institution for the building of Successful Business Careers. Write for Free 180 p. Book, "The Direct Way to Success," stating age, educational and business experience.

It seems unlikely that France will withdraw her mandate. In fact, persons of authority are quoted as having said recently.

"We entered Syria victoriously, after a bloody war. The French will remain on the Eastern shore of the Mediterranean so long as Great Britain remains in Palestine and Egypt."

It is fairly obvious that France is willing to make administrative and financial reforms, but is not prepared wholly to retire from the Lebanon and the Near East.

French Imperialists claim that they are bound to safeguard the air-route Paris-Saigon (French-Indo-China) and that the Lebanese coast is an essential outpost on this route.

Will Hire French Experts

Quite apart from any question of unity Syria admits that she still needs foreign help in some matters and will undertake to engage French experts as advisers.

In the rejected treaty France claimed the right of judging in what matters Syria required advisers, and to what extent, but Syrians insist that they are entitled to decide this for themselves.

Considerable hard feeling has developed over the vexing question of the mixed courts, in which all cases are judged in which one of the parties is a foreigner.

In the 15th century "consular jurisdiction" was not intended as a privilege for the foreigner so much as it was a refusal of the Ottoman State to become involved with the affairs of subjects of other states.

During the 18th, 19th and early 20th centuries, when the Syrian legal system was eaten with corruption "consular jurisdiction" became an important privilege, and invested the foreign consuls with considerable powers.

The ordinary national courts of Syria are today very much improved, many of the lawyers have studied at the Sorbonne, and the average number of judgments revised at the appeal is smaller than in the so-called Mixed courts; in consequence there seems no longer any need for upholding the latter.

Foreign Policy

some of their strategic places, and the aerodromes of Aleppo and Damascus, to the French troops, if they will defend the country from outside interference for the time being.

In exchange France is to obtain certain economic concessions and privileges, and French capital must be given preference, other things being equal.

There is no difficulty about foreign representation. Syria is to send her representatives to the neighbouring Arab countries and to Paris, and will be represented by France in all other places. The external sovereignty of Syria is to be limited insofar as Syria will not be able to conclude any foreign treaty that might endanger French interests.

TURKEY HAS NO DESIGNS ON ALEXANDRETTA

(From a Special Correspondent)

ISTANBUL, April 12.— An account of the visit of the Turkish Consul at Aleppo to Dr. Abdul Rahman Al Khiali, the National leader, and his statement that Turkey had no political designs upon Alexandretta, have appeared in the Turkish press.

The Consul declared that Turkey's sole desire was to maintain the clauses of the Turco-French pact concerning this Syrian province. Previous reports had been that Turkey was seeking to have the province annexed to the Republic.

Reports from Teheran state that the Iran Government will set up a mercantile marine of its own for the European service, to operate on the Bosphorus route.

AMERICA RETURNS TO "NORMAL" TIMES

By M. RIVLIN

(Special to The Palestine Post)

NEW YORK, April 2. — Business activity is close to normal, but some ten million people are unemployed. This may sound like a paradox, but is unfortunately a true summation of economic conditions in these United States now.

According to one of the leading and most reliable charts, the index of business activity here is now 94, or only six points short of normal. Since by "normal" is meant the average of business activity which obtained here during the so-called prosperous years of 1923-29, we are, according to the above stated chart-figure, again on the border of economic "normalcy."

The same statistical figures show that in the past twelve months business activity rose 8.2 points (from 85.8 to 94), or 9.6 per cent. Which is a fairly good sign that the United States are well on the way to full economic recovery.

Should we take the stock market as a barometer of business activity, and many here do so, then we would have good cause to throw our hats in the air and shout from the house-tops that Madame Prosperity has finally turned the mythical corner and is here to stay with us. The index of prices of the fifty most active stocks shows now an average price of 120. But that isn't all. The same index shows that only a year ago the average price of these same fifty stocks was only 81. Which means an increase in stock prices of 39 points, or 48 per cent. in the short period of twelve months.

Whether this spurt in stock prices is indicative of genuine business recovery, or merely shows that the speculative forces are again on their feet and running away with the market, is a question open to serious debate. But there can be no two opinions about the significance of the rise in business activity as shown by the statistical figures.

Yet no one can dare speak of returning prosperity to these United States, after almost seven years of continuous depression, when ten million people, the vast majority of whom want work, are out of employment and must be supported by charity, be it from government or private funds.

by the depression as by the mechanization of industry, in other words men and women whose places in industry has been taken away by the machine. Even President Roosevelt as much as said that were conditions to become again what they were in 1929 some 5,000,000 would be out of work.

Were we to accept this fallacy as an established theory, we still would have to answer the question: What about the other five million unemployed, whom even our industrialists haven't condemned to the scrap heap? Most of these are now employed on various governmental relief-work projects, but that is no permanent solution of the problem: it is merely a palliative, and not a cure. Surely, the government cannot go on spending billions of dollars on relief and running continuously with a deficit. Even as rich and mighty a nation like this must break under such a strain.

THE whole idea behind the relief-work project was to employ those out of work for a short time until private industry would be able to get back on its feet and start to absorb them. Private industry is now fairly well on its feet, as the above mentioned chart shows, and yet there is no appreciable dent in the number of unemployed.

It seems, then, that the number of labourers whom private industry has permanently dispensed with is much greater than some of our economists, and President Roosevelt, have previously estimated.

There is only one solution to this plaguing problem, and that is to reduce the working hours in all branches of our economic endeavour. And reduce it to a point where all those who are now unemployed can find work. Such a scheme would at first work hardship both on the employer and the presently employed, especially the latter, since it is assumed that such a plan would call for contributions on the part of both labour and capital. The worker who is now employed will under a shorter work-week earn less than he does now, while the employer will have more wages to pay out for about the same amount of work that he gets now.

had more than one fairly decent suit, one pair of shoes and two shirts at one time each. Some of them hadn't bought any new clothing in years, and a goodly number of them went without overcoats in the coldest of winter days. The same was true of their wives and children. To a great extent this under-consumption on the part of a large part of American residents prevailed also where food was concerned.

On the basis of these revealing figures it was estimated that the clothing industry alone could easily double its production, if the average worker were enabled to earn enough to dress according to his most elementary needs. The same thing could be said about the other industries which supply the citizen with his daily needs.

There is no question but that with enough purchasing power placed in the hands of the masses the wheels of industry could be made to turn so fast that not only would those presently unemployed be reabsorbed, but there would be room for many more.

Some one has to supply that purchasing power, and that can be done only by making room in industry for all who care to come and work, even if capital will have to make a sacrifice at the outset. But capital has so far refused to show a little far-sightedness.

The suggestion is to set up a federation of American nations pledged to mutual assistance against foreign aggression in accordance with the Monroe Doctrine.

The plan includes an American Court of Arbitration similar to The Hague Tribunal, which deal with disputes among the members of the proposed League. It is intended to discuss the scheme at the All-American Conference to be held at Buenos Aires later this year.

Death of German Envoy in London

(From Reuter/Wireless)

LONDON, Monday. — Herr Leopold von Hoesch, the German Ambassador to London, died suddenly here on Friday. He was in his 55th year.

Germany's representative at the Court of St. James belonged to the old school of German diplomats whose traditions have been carried on under the Republic (writes a Staff Correspondent). He was neither a "Junker" nor a Democrat, but a titled member of the upper middle class, a type characteristic of the regime of Wilhelm II.

Hoesch came from an old family of Rhenish manufacturers, owners of the famous Hoesch Iron and Steel Works at Dortmund. He entered the diplomatic service in 1907. As secretary of the German Embassy in Constantinople during the War, he worked with the present Foreign Minister, Baron von Neurath. At the outset of Franco-German collaboration during the Stressmann period, he became Ambassador in Paris, and in 1929 was posted to London.

European Reconstruction

With the postponement of formal discussions on the Rhineland situation until May 11, attention is once more being diverted to the efforts of the League towards bringing about a truce in the Italo-Ethiopian war through the Committee of Thirteen. Even so, the intransigent attitude of the Duce in the hours of "superb victories," is threatening to wreck the faint hopes that are still entertained.

Meanwhile, two principles which owe their formulation to the recent crisis created by Hitler are being persevered in by the Powers chiefly concerned in maintaining European security, namely the principle of reconstruction enunciated by Great Britain and that of the political unity of Europe, insisted upon by France. That both principles are essentially one and the same is clear; the vaguer-sounding formula of Great Britain being specially adapted to her determination to take advantage of any situation which may develop, capable of contributing towards security, whilst that of France looks towards the same end though tinged with the persistent French conviction that such security can only be obtained through welding into one the nations concerned by an intricate system of treaties and pacts.

From whichever of the two angles the problem is looked at the solution may seem difficult enough to achieve, and two recent events, straws in the political wind, have served to show that the ideal of reconstruction and European unity, if it is to be faithfully achieved, will involve something far more fundamental than has yet been attempted in post-War Europe. Germany, under Hitler, has seen fit to throw down the gauntlet over not only the Locarno Treaty but its parent, the Treaty of Versailles, and the measure of success which has followed that move has already prompted Turkey and Austria to announce their intention of setting out upon the road of imitation. Turkey, which, through a dictatorship similar in some respects to the regimes in Italy and Germany, succeeded in throwing off the heaviest burden of her post-War disgrace by the re-occupation of western Asia Minor and Adrianople, has for some time been occupied in matters of internal reconstruction and of rapprochements, chiefly with the Soviet, yet the idea of applying further pressure to secure a revision of treaties has for her an inevitable appeal. Hence her recent utterances on the absolute necessity of refortifying the Dardanelles contrary to the provisions of the Lausanne Treaty of 1923. And Kemal Ataturk, like Hitler, will no doubt advance his country's claims before the League with the utmost goodwill and with the re-affirmation of the sentiment which he expressed on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of the Republic when he faced the world "with loyalty and friendship."

Though the exact position of Austria, courted as she has been by the rival Fascist and Nazi dictatorships, is always difficult to estimate, it is safe to say that nothing could be more unstable — such stability as she has shown being the result of opposing forces and pressure under the Treaty of Versailles. ### The League's Chinese Puzzle

By RICHARD MANTLE

IMPORTANT developments towards the reconstruction of China are foreshadowed before the end of 1936. Undeterred by the Ethiopian situation and the uncertainties of European politics, the China Committee of the League of Nations has been unfolding its plans for helping the National Government of China to put its house in order. For about five years, technical co-operation between Nanking and Geneva has been steadily continuing. In spite of the vast difficulties encountered in dealing with so unwieldy and often backward a country, the results have been so gratifying that China is "asking for more." Time and again the League's activities are hampered by the fact that it is easier to wreck a train than to build a railway system. Wreckers in plenty beset the path of the League.

Japan has continually tried to thwart the League's plans for Chinese reconstruction. Still the work goes on. Public health services are being established. Quarantine systems are being instituted at the ports. Communications are being improved. Economic and financial problems are being tackled.

Agriculture

Agriculture is to receive special attention during the coming months. From time immemorial, countless millions of Chinese have depended for their livelihood upon the soil. Against famine and flood, they have struggled to wring some meagre recompense from the grudging hands of Mother Nature. Co-operative Societies are now springing up in an amazing manner in the rural areas. The Chinese Government is anxious that they should develop along the right lines. Through the League, an expert technician has been secured in Mr. Campbell, who comes from Ceylon with a unique reputation in these matters.

An Italian expert is helping to develop and improve conditions in the silk industry. Road questions, the conservancy of waterways and irrigation are being dealt with by five experts appointed by the League's Communications and Transit Organization. Many nationalities are represented among the advisers — British, French, Dutch, even Yugoslav.

THE LISTENER'S CORNER

The Easter Gospel in 8 Languages

The broadcast on Easter Sunday afternoon, when the Easter Gospel was read before the microphone in eight languages by the heads of several Christian communities in Jerusalem, made history in a number of different ways. Not only was it the first occasion when the Gospel narrative of the Resurrection was broadcast from the Holy City, but it was probably the first time that such languages as classical Armenian, Coptic, Syriac and ancient Ethiopic were ever heard on the radio.

The Gospel passages were read in Latin by the Latin Patriarch, in Greek by the Orthodox Patriarch-elect, in classical Armenian by the Armenian Patriarch, in English by the Anglican Bishop in Jerusalem, in Coptic by the Coptic Archbishop, in Syriac by the Syrian Orthodox Bishop, in Ethiopic by the Abbot of the Abyssinian Convent, and finally in Arabic by Father Gregory of the local Orthodox parish. The order of the readings followed the Government order of precedence for official occasions.

Competition for English Children

English children in Jerusalem have been offered a set of gardening implements as a prize in a novel competition announced during the Children's Hour yesterday afternoon. Competitors must be under 12 years and write an essay on, "What Happened in My Garden." The closing date is April 20, and the winner will be announced on April 27.

Mr. Robin Furness, C.B.E., gave an interesting reading last evening of a chapter from David Garnett's "Pocohontas." Pocohontas was the daughter of the Indian chief, Powhatan, and her husband, an English trader named Rolf, brought her to England in the 17th century.

Premier of Greece Dies of Apoplexy

(From Reuter/Wireless)

ATHENS, Monday.— Dr. Constantine Demerdjis, Prime Minister of Greece since the return of King George II. to the throne in November last, died of apoplexy here yesterday.

Dr. Demerdjis, who was in his 61st year, was professor of Civil Law at Athens University, and although previously in politics had not closely identified himself with either side in the dispute between the Monarchists and Republicans.

His place is to be taken by General Metaxas, the Royalist leader, who was Minister of War in the last Cabinet. No other changes are contemplated.

SIR ALLISTON TOKER

The death is also announced of Major-General Sir Alliston Toker in his 93rd year. He served in the Egyptian Expedition, 1882, as Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General of the Indian contingent. He translated into Urdu, Hindi and Gurmukhi all the military text books in use by the Indian native army.

CANTON, Monday. — Many persons are feared to have perished in an extensive fire which gutted hundreds of buildings in the west end of Canton on Saturday. Hundreds of injured have been taken to hospital.

JEWISH FARM BURNED IN POLAND

(Palcor)

WARSAW, Monday.— Naras, an anti-Semitic organization similar to the Endeks, recently burned a Jewish farm in the village of Rudka. The owner, Isaac Mozchinski, was seriously injured.

ed in matters of internal reconstruction and of rapprochements, chiefly with the Soviet, yet the idea of applying further pressure to secure a revision of treaties has for her an inevitable appeal. Hence her recent utterances on the absolute necessity of re-fortifying the Dardanelles contrary to the provisions of the Lausanne Treaty of 1923. And Kemal Ataturk, like Hitler, will no doubt advance his country's claims before the League with the utmost goodwill and with the re-affirmation of the sentiment which he expressed on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of the Republic when he faced the world "with loyalty and friendship."

Though the exact position of Austria, courted as she has been by the rival Fascist and Nazi dictatorships, is always difficult to estimate, it is safe to say that nothing could be more unstable — such stability as she has shown being the result of opposing forces and pressure under the Treaty of Versailles. The recent Rome talks in which Herr von Schuschnigg has been taking part showed Italy determined to aid in the maintenance of Austrian independence, and now, on top of this has come a gesture in the same direction from Austria herself. Like Germany, and perhaps with greater reason, Austria has now embarked on military conscription as the first step towards recovering her self-esteem. Hungary, the other party to the Rome talks, is also said to have discussed her "equality of rights" with Signor Mussolini, a phrase which bears an ominous connotation. Such agitation in the very centre of the reconstituted Europe of 1919 could have and has had but one immediate result, the further embarrassment of the League with a protest from the Little Entente, and France, while still struggling to retrieve what she can from the remnants of her Rhineland policy, will now be invited to consider the problem of the danger threatening to overtake the political equilibrium which she helped to create in Central and Eastern Europe.

Whether the wind, which has blown such straws across the political scene, will increase or blow itself temporarily to rest, no one would care to say. Yet the indications such as they are sufficiently clear to emphasise the urgency of the literal, even if far-reaching interpretation by the Powers concerned of the principle of reconstruction and unity. However far-reaching the conclusions involved, they could hardly be more so than a spread of the present determination to obtain satisfaction with a high hand in those directions where it is considered to be grudgingly and obstinately withheld.

Road questions, the conservancy of waterways and irrigation are being dealt with by five experts appointed by the League's Communications and Transit Organization. Many nationalities are represented among the advisers — British, French, Dutch, even Yugoslav.

But the League is also visualising a time when the Chinese will be competent to supervise the complete administration of their own country. With this end in view selected Chinese specialists are to be sent abroad, to see for themselves how such problems as health, finance, reconstruction and waterways are handled in other countries. After preliminary studies at the League Secretariat at Geneva, they will be sent on special missions to gain first-hand knowledge.

Holiday Excursion Ends in Tragedy

A holiday excursion to the Dead Sea and Arnon River yesterday ended in a tragedy.

A party of 74 members of the Nature-lovers' Group of the Hapoel, Haifa, lost one of their number yesterday afternoon while swimming in the Arnon River. The party left Kallia on Sunday morning, slept at Azum, and returned yesterday to the Arnon for a swim. Abraham Wallach, 20, a weak swimmer, ventured into deep water and sank. His body was brought to Kallia at six last night.

Another group of about 25 members of the (Hashomer Hazair) Kibutz near Petah Tikva, left Jerusalem on foot on Sunday morning for the Dead Sea. Six of the party, including five boys and one girl, separated from the rest between Mar Saba and Fasha. A party of police found five of them in the early morning hours at the spring of Fasha, where they had slept. The sixth, Isaac Lubitsh, had gone for aid, and after walking all night he finally found his way back to Mar Saba.

The Political Department of the Jewish Agency issued a warning last night against undertaking excursions to distant places without proper guides.

Six Histadrut Workers Fined by Magistrate

The trial of six workers of the General Federation of Jewish Labour in Jerusalem charged with disturbing the peace as a result of a dispute with Revisionist workers over drainage excavations in Agrippa's Way ended on Sunday. All the accused were found guilty by the Magistrate, Mr. Bardaky. Two others had been released at the conclusion of a previous hearing.

Zalman Barzilai, Secretary of the Employment Bureau of the Histadrut in Jerusalem, and three brothers, Samuel, Zemach and Zalman Brashi, were sentenced to pay a fine of LP. 3 each with the alternative of 30 days' imprisonment. Abraham Mizrahi was fined LP. 1 with the alternative of 10 days' imprisonment, and Eliahu Mizrahi was bound over to be of good behaviour for two years on bond of LP.10. All of the accused paid the fines imposed and were released.

Inspector Brenner of the Mahne Yehuda Station appeared for the prosecution and Mr. Krongold, for the accused.

The trial of Ezra Doueck of Aleppo, who is charged with defrauding another resident of Aleppo of LP. 354 in a Rishon-le-Zion land transaction began before the Magistrate, Mr. Bardaky, and was adjourned at a late hour after many preliminary objections over the place of hearing — Jerusalem, where the money changed hands, or Aleppo, or the Jaffa District Court — were disposed of. Mr. Goitein appeared for the accused.

Tel Aviv to Get Own Passenger Station

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS IN PARLIAMENT

(From Our Own Correspondent)

LONDON, April 8 (By Air Mail):— Matters of trade and transport communications in Palestine formed the subjects of questions put to the Colonial Secretary in the House of Commons during the past week, demonstrating once more the attention which is being paid to the country's economic development.

Mr. R. H. Morgan, Conservative M.P., for Stourbridge, had two questions to ask. He first inquired why there was delay in providing adequate harbour facilities at Jaffa in view of the increase from 167,106 tons handled in 1926 to 607,941 tons in 1934. Mr. Thomas pointed out that work on a port development scheme had been carried on since 1934, and considerable improvement in facilities had already been achieved.

In his next question, Mr. Morgan referred to Sir Felix Pole's recommendation for a new railway passenger station for Jaffa and Tel Aviv in view of the growth in the Tel Aviv population, and urged the execution of the scheme. Mr. Thomas answered that it was hoped to enlarge the existing Jaffa station and to construct a new passenger station at Tel Aviv in the near future.

Bringing Bread Into Jerusalem

PASSOVER HOLIDAYS OVER

The seven-day Feast of the Passover ended at sunset yesterday, and restaurants in cities and towns were crowded all evening with Jewish residents tasting their first leavened bread after a week's diet of "matzoth."

Whole wagonloads of bread were brought into Tel Aviv from Jaffa and sold in the streets.

While only a few drops of rain fell in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv during the afternoon, a shower which lasted for about ten minutes, fell in Tel Aviv at about 8 p.m. and caught the numerous post-holiday pedestrians unawares, sending them scurrying for shelter.

At the same time a heavy rain fell in the Nablus area hampering the large holiday traffic. "Egged" buses were leaving Jerusalem every few minutes last night and the queue of visitors waiting to return to Tel Aviv stretched from the terminal to the corner of King George Avenue.

The holiday in Jerusalem on Sunday evening was marked by "Hassidic" dancing in one of the streets of Zichron Moshe by the Rabbi of Gur, and his followers, while in a neighbouring street a small Revisionist demonstration was dispersed by the police. Yesterday afternoon the Revisionist youth attempted to demonstrate again in the same neighbourhood, but they were quickly dispersed by police, six were arrested, and their flag was confiscated before it was raised.

Import Duties

The proposed Palestine protective duties on Palestine-made bath-tubs and cast-iron soil pipes were described by Mr. R. Westwood, Labour (Stirling and Falkirk) as offering competition to British makers who do a considerable export trade with that country. He asked what steps were being taken to safeguard British manufacturing interests.

According to Mr. Westwood, an application had been made to the High Commissioner by the Palestine Foundries and Metal Works Ltd. to increase the duties from 7s. to 30s. per bath-tub and from £1 to £3 per ton on cast-iron soil pipes.

Mr. Thomas said that he was aware of the proposals which were designed to protect a local industry in Palestine, but thought that it would not be proper for the British Government to interfere in this matter as Palestine was a mandated territory.

What About the Mandate

Pressed to admit that the Government might at least open negotiations in the interests of British trade "even with a mandated territory," the Colonial Minister agreed that this could be done, but under the Mandate, impartial consideration had to be given to all countries. He added, "I am sure that if I announced in this House that His Majesty's Government were going to interfere in the manner suggested, I should at once be asked, 'What about the Mandate?'" it is because there is excess acid in your stomach. This is bad, for the acid attacks the stomach lining and may cause ulcers. To get quick relief you should take half a teaspoonful of 'Bisurated' Magnesia in water, which neutralises excess acid and soothes and heals the stomach lining. Doctors throughout the world recommend 'Bisurated' Magnesia.

A MARRIAGE OF MONKEYS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

BOMBAY, April 10.— The ce-remonial "marriage" of a pair of monkeys, with all the ritual of a Hindu wedding, was conducted at Surat today by a Saḍhu (Hindu ascetic) "in response to inspira-tion." The male monkey is sup-posed to be a descendant of the monkey-god Hanunian. Thousands lined the streets to watch the marriage procession. Both the monkeys wore costly costumes and sat in a decorated motor-car.

and military officers in uniform. At the service which followed, the Easter Gospel was read successively in twelve languages.

More Pilgrims than Usual

Pilgrims were surprisingly numerous this year, large delegations of German and French Catholics were much in evidence, the latter including some notables from Syria; upwards of a thousand Orthodox pilgrims came from Cyprus, Greece, Bulgaria and Rumania, some 3,000 Copts were up for the feast, and there were goodly numbers of Anglicans, Armenians and Syrians.

The services at St. George's Cathedral were notable for the excellence of the singing, the beauty of the floral decorations and for the presence of the two visiting Bishops from Winchester and Pretoria. The Anglican Bishops of the Upper Nile and of Shantung (China) who were here for Holy Week were compelled to leave before the feast.

League's Finances Unsatisfactory

In many parts of the country the Jewish populace spent the Passover holiday indoors, lest they be attacked on the streets by the increasingly daring anti-Semitic groups.

The Arab press yesterday reported a meeting of "Arab Youth Organization," held on Saturday at the home of Rabah el Khadra, Jaffa, at which members resolved to "lay the foundations for organizing the Arab youth in the country," and to discuss the composition of the forthcoming Arab delegation to London. A committee was appointed to investigate the whole question of a Legislative Council for Palestine and put its findings before a later meeting to be held this week.

Ibrahim Esh Shanti, expresses a hope that this meeting will dispel the belief that the Arab Youth in Palestine is "morally diseased" and that in a few months the youth will be organized to "set free his people."

Malta as a Crown Colony

ble accusations printed by Signor Virginio Gayda, editor of "Giornale d'Italia," regarding the alleged supply from British sources of poison gas to the Ethiopians.

Experience of Italian press attacks on Great Britain during the past year has prepared public opinion for the latest and most ludicrous example.

The explanation of the reported gas casualties among the Ethiopians which suggests that they were the result of inept attempts to use against the Italians chemical supplies manufactured by named subsidiaries of Imperial Chemical Industries, reads curiously in the light of the fact, to which the British Foreign Secretary drew attention at the meeting of the Committee of 13, that the Italian Government has declared that 259 tons of poison gas were in transit through the Suez Canal.

Imperial Chemical Industries considered it desirable, however, to state that the allegations concerning the supplying of poison gas to the Ethiopians were false in all respects so far as it is concerned. The companies named by Signor Gayda either do not exist or are unconnected with I.C.I. (reported in "After Midnight" on Sunday.)
