

Black and white photograph showing a group of women in uniform marching down a street, carrying a large sign. The sign is held by several women in the center of the group. The women are wearing dark, heavy coats and hats, suggesting a cold climate. The street is lined with buildings, and there are trees visible in the background. The women are walking in a line, and the sign is held by several of them in the middle of the group.