

34 DPA SERIES: THE NAZI HOLOCAUST - SERIES II — When the Americans and the British advanced from the west, and the Russians from the east, Himmler ordered the emergency evacuation of the remnants of the prisoners as the Germans retreated westward. Only 500,000 concentration camp prisoners remained alive, most of them physically crippled and mentally broken. These surviving remnants bore witness to the "new order" which the Nazis were preparing for the whole world. Belsen concentration camp, May 29, 1945.
