Capital £P. 400,000
in £P. 1 Shares

It was officially announced yesterday that the operations of the Agricultural Mortgage Company of Palestine would commence in the near future.

It was announced that Mr. Noel Crewe, the newly-appointed General Manager, had arrived in Jerusalem to take up his duties.

Mr. Crewe has been connected with the Mortgage Company of Egypt for 27 years. Until recently he was its sub-manager.

The capital of the new company, is £P.400,000, divided into £P. 1 shares.

The funds have been subscribed by Barclays Bank (D. C. and O.), the Anglo-Palestine Bank, the Prudential Assurance Company, the Guardian Eastern Insurance Company, the Palestine Corporation, and the Palestine Economic Corporation of New York City.

Barclays Extends Credit Facilities

A delegation representing Jerusalem merchants and artisans waited upon Mr. Clark, Manager of Barclays Bank, on Wednesday and received from him assurances that the Bank would extend credits to merchants in approved circumstances, whether they had previously done business with Barclays or not.

In order to advise the Bank in respect of the financial status of applicants it was agreed to set up a committee representing the merchants, the artisans and the Bank.

HOSTILITIES IN ETHIOPIA

Emperor Asserts That Italy Was Aggressor

BOMBARDMENT OF TWO TOWNS

(BOWP and Reuter/Wireless)

GENEVA, Thursday.— Italian aggression in commencing hostilities in Ethiopia was alleged in a Note received this morning by telegraph from the Emperor at Addis Ababa.

Addressed to the Secretary-General of the League, the Note read as follows:—

“Please communicate to the Council and member-States that a telegram was received this morning, October 3, from Ras Seyum, informing the Imperial Government that Italian military aeroplanes this morning bombarded Adowa and Adigrat, causing numerous casualties among the civilian population, including women and children, and destroying numerous houses.

“Fighting is at present taking place in the province of Agame.

“These facts, occurring in Ethiopian territory, constitute a violation of the Empire's frontier and a breach of the Covenant by Italian aggression.”

Second Telegram

In a second telegram received from the Negus late this afternoon, the following statement was made:

“A second air raid was made on Adowa this afternoon. Seventy-eight bombs were dropped, and one fell on a Red Cross Hospital. Nurses were killed and wounded.”

World Opinion and God

“For the second time, Italy is preparing to invade our territory. World opinion and God will be with us in our fight for Empire and God.”

Concentrated Attack on All Fronts

BRITAIN SEEKS ASSURANCES REGARDING POSSIBLE
FLEET ATTACK

(From British Official Wireless Press)

LONDON, October 1. — The inquiry addressed to France by Great Britain as to the latter's attitude in the event of a sudden attack by the Italian fleet on British warships in the Mediterranean, is confirmed in official circles here.

The question arose owing to a gap in Article 16 of the Covenant, under clause 3, in which it is stipulated that all members agree to stand together in case of isolated attack once the League has decided on collective action.

But no course is laid down for the intermediate period before that decision is taken. It is believed that France will refer to the British interpretation that in any case League members stand together in the event of such aggression.

Fears of Italian Policy

Signor Mussolini's allegation that while Great Britain knew in January about Italy's aspirations in Ethiopia, she did not make her attitude clear before Mr. Anthony Eden went to Rome in June, is dismissed in London.

It is pointed out that, since the Walwal incident last November, scarcely a week has passed without Great Britain making quite clear her apprehensions about the Italian policy, especially with regard

“WAR HAS STARTED!”

SUCH WAS THE OPENING SENTENCE IN AN OFFICIAL STATEMENT ISSUED AT ADDIS ABABA YESTERDAY MORNING BY THE EMPEROR OF ETHIOPIA ANNOUNCING THE OPENING OF HOSTILITIES IN EAST AFRICA.

THERE WAS NO ULTIMATUM OR DECLARATION OF WAR, BUT THE EMPEROR CLAIMED THAT THE TROOPS STARTED OFFENSIVE MEASURES AND MILITARY AEROPLANES BOMBARDED ADOWA AND ADIGRAT, IN THE NORTHERN TIGRE PROVINCE.

IT IS EXPECTED THAT THE ITALIANS WILL ATTACK ON ALL FRONTS TODAY.

NEITHER CONFIRMATION NOR DENIAL OF THESE REPORTS COULD BE OBTAINED AT ROME.

LONDON, October 2.— British Ministers were asked to keep themselves available for any emergency that might arise, when they met at the Cabinet conference today, it is stated.

Departments dealing with defence have been fully authorised to take all action necessary after consultation with the Prime Minister.

TOWNS BOMBARDED

The telegram from the Negus to the League stated that both Adowa and Adigrat were bombarded from the air, and hundreds of civilian residents were killed. Adowa was also attacked by troops.

Fighting then started in the Oga-den and Agame provinces, according to Addis Ababa reports. It was stated that Italian troops advancing in Agame were defeated.

Fierce fighting also reported from the North Tigre province. The Ethiopians claim that the Italian troops are retreating, covered by aeroplanes.

An air raid on Addis Ababa was expected today.

In its mobilisation

A delegation representing Jerusalem merchants and artisans waited upon Mr. Clark, Manager of Barclays Bank, on Wednesday and received from him assurances that the Bank would extend credits to merchants in approved circumstances, whether they had previously done business with Barclays or not.

In order to advise the Bank in respect of the financial status of applicants it was agreed to set up a committee representing the merchants, the artisans and the Bank.

SAUDI-ARABIA WILL REMAIN NEUTRAL

DAMASCUS, October 1. — The Government of Saudi-Arabia, has resolved to maintain its complete neutrality towards the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, stated Sheikh Abdullah Suleiman, the Saudi Minister of Finance, in the course of an interview here.

Italy Charges Enemy with Being Warlike

(British Official Wireless Press and Reuter/Wireless)

GENEVA, Thursday. — The accusation that Ethiopia had been insistently demanding war with Italy, thus necessitating measures of advance, was made in a Note telegraphed to the League today by Signor Suvich, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs at Rome.

The Note read as follows:

"The war-like and aggressive spirit developed in Ethiopia among its leaders and tribesmen, who have been long and insistently demanding war with Italy and have succeeded in imposing it, has found its latest and complete expression in the order for general mobilisation announced by the Emperor in his telegram of September 28.

Threat to Italy

"That order represents a direct and immediate threat to the Italian troops, with the aggravating circumstances of the creation of a neutral zone announced pian territory, constitute a violation of the Empire's frontier and a breach of the Covenant by Italian aggression."

Second Telegram

In a second telegram received from the Negus late this afternoon, the following statement was made:

"A second air raid was made on Adowa this afternoon. Seventy-eight bombs were dropped, and one fell on a Red Cross Hospital. Nurses were killed and wounded."

World Opinion and God

"For the second time, Italy is preparing to invade our territory. World opinion and God will be with us in our fight for Emperor and country."

Such was the cry of Ligaba Tasso, Grand Chamberlain of the Ethiopian Court, after reading the proclamation of general mobilisation at Addis Ababa yesterday morning.

Hundreds of tribal chieftains and residents had collected outside the Palace and cheered the Emperor with wild enthusiasm.

The proclamation was followed by the beating of drums.

League members stand together in the event of such aggression.

Fears of Italian Policy

Signor Mussolini's allegation that while Great Britain knew in January about Italy's aspirations in Ethiopia, she did not make her attitude clear before Mr. Anthony Eden went to Rome in June, is dismissed in London.

It is pointed out that, since the Walwal incident last November, scarcely a week has passed without Great Britain making quite clear her apprehensions about the Italian policy, especially with regard to its effect on the collective system.

As to the immediate future, it is asserted that there is little reason to hope that an outbreak of war may be averted. But Great Britain will do all in her power to get the best results from the League machine to bring war to an end as soon as possible.

Great Britain does not intend to

Last Minute News

It is officially estimated in Addis Ababa that the casualties of the bombing at Adowa and Adigrat were 1,700.

The Italian Embassy in London has not received confirmation of the bombing of Adowa. Signor Grandi, the Italian Ambassador in London, visited Sir Robert Vansittart at the Foreign Office and gave reasons for the penetration of Italian troops into Ethiopia.

It is officially stated in Rome that only few precautionary measures have been taken in view of the Ethiopian mass mobilisation, which according to latest estimates will total 1,100,000 men.

In view of the present situation the Committee of Thirteen at its two-and-a-half hour meeting yesterday afternoon decided,

1) not to send neutral observers to Ethiopia, and

2) not to make any final recommendations to the League assembly, but to leave the decision to the Council meeting tomorrow morning.

It is understood in political circles in London that Parliament will be summoned at an earlier date than was previously anticipated.

IMPORTANT MEETINGS IN LONDON

(British Official Wireless Press)

LONDON, October 2. — British Ministers were asked to keep themselves available for any emergency that might arise, when they met at the Cabinet conference today, it is stated.

Departments dealing with defence have been fully authorised to take all action necessary after consultation with the Prime Minister.

Mr. Baldwin held various consultations today with the Ministers for War and Air and the First Lords of the Admiralty.

Sir Samuel Hoare, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Mr. Walter Runciman, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, and Sir John Simon, among other Ministers also met the Prime Minister. Air Chief Marshal Sir Edward Ellington and Admiral Sir Ernle Chatfield were present.

Party Leaders Urge Larger Defence

(Reuter/Wireless)

LONDON, Thursday. — A motion urging the British Government to strengthen its defence forces against any aggression by a single Power, and to fulfil loyally its international obligations, was carried unanimously by the annual conference of the Conservative Party at Bournemouth today.

The motion had been amalgamated with an amendment moved by Mr. Winston Churchill.

The original resolution was introduced by Sir Edward Grigg, and led to an important debate about the national defences of Great Britain.

Mr. Winston Churchill's amendment went into greater detail about defence, the organisation of industries so that they could be quickly converted under emergency conditions, the strengthening of the Air Force, and the rebuilding and strengthening of the Fleet.

In his speech, he said that there was no essential difference between his point of view and that of Sir Edward Grigg. He thought that from the air, and hundreds of civilian residents were killed. Adowa was also attacked by troops.

Fighting then started in the Oga-den and Agame provinces, according to Addis Ababa reports. It was stated that Italian troops advancing in Agame were defeated.

Fierce fighting also reported from the North Tigre province. The Ethiopians claim that the Italian troops are retreating, covered by aeroplanes.

An air raid on Addis Ababa was expected today.

Concentration at Dessie

In its mobilisation order today, the Ethiopian Government ordered that all troops should concentrate at Dessie, just south of Magdala, and some 200 miles north of Addis Ababa.

The Ethiopian Crown Prince is in command at this centre.

The Italian Ambassador, Count Vinci, was handed passports for himself and staff yesterday, and is Europe might not have been in its present position had British armed forces been stronger.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, on behalf of the Government, said that everything mentioned in the resolution and amendment was being done. If any country were willing to disarm, England too would be ready, he declared. But no country was disarming, and therefore Great Britain had to fill the gaps in its defences.

The Liberal point of view was expounded by Sir Herbert Samuel in a speech at the National Liberal Club today.

He said that the League, and Great Britain as a member, must see this matter through. The duty of initiative rested on the British Government. If the League did nothing in the present crisis, then the smaller nations all over the world would cease to be interested in its doings, and the policy of military alliances and unlimited armaments would gain immediate impetus.

Criminal Case 502/35.

PUBLIC NOTICE UNDER POLICE ORDINANCES 1926-34, s. 34 (1). NECESSITY FOR PUBLICATION IN GAZETTE

The Chief Magistrate, in discharging the accused who were charged with taking part in an unlawful assembly contrary to Section 25 of the Criminal Law (Seditious Offences) Ordinance, 1929, and Section 34 (a) of the Police Ordinances 1926-34, HELD, inter alia, (1) Section 25 of the Seditious Offences Ordinance only lays down the penalty for unlawful assembly and does not create any offence and therefore should not have been put in the charge (2) The notice published in accordance with the provisions of Section 34 (1) of the Police Ordinances, 1926-34, should have been published in the Gazette as the Police Ordinance does not in any way set aside the ordinary methods of publication, nor does it substitute any other method (3) The production of a copy of the notice is not sufficient proof that all the necessary formalities of publication had been complied with.

The relevant facts and pleadings are set out in the judgment. All the accused elected to be tried by the Magistrate and all pleaded not guilty.

For the First Accused: Dr. Z. E. Cohen.

For the Second and Third Accused: M. Stein.

Judgment delivered on September 27.

JUDGMENT

This is a prosecution of 3 persons on a charge of taking part in an unlawful procession contrary to section 34 of the Police Ordinances 1926 to 1934 and section 25 of the Seditious Offences Ordinance.

Charge Badly Laid

The charge was badly laid. Section 34 of the Police Amendment Ordinance 1934 is very long and down the penalty for unlawful assembly and does not create any offence. It should not have been put in the charge. After the correction of the charge the offence charged was for taking part in an unlawful procession contrary to sec. 34 A, of the Police Amendment Ordinance 1934. The defence was not prejudiced and took no exception to these technical amendments.

Facts Proved

The prosecution proved that:

1. On 22.7.35 notices had been posted up in various public places in Tel Aviv directing that any persons wishing to hold any public meeting or procession must first obtain a licence from the District Superintendent of Police.

2. On 27.7.35 a procession of more than 50 persons took place for which no licence had been asked or granted.

3. The accused took part in the procession.

4. The Prosecution put in a copy of the notice which had been posted up (Exh. IA.1.).

The Defence

When the case for the prosecution was closed, Mr. Cohen for the defence took the point that the notice was only valid if gazetted and that it was not proved that this had been done; that the procession was only unlawful if the notice requiring a licence was valid; that therefore the prosecution had not proved its case.

It is clear that, as the charge is laid, the conviction of the accused depends on whether the notice has been lawfully made and published. This must be done in accordance with the terms of Sec. 34 (1). The proof of this is a necessary part of the prosecution.

Sec. 34 of the Police Amendment Ordinance empowers the District Superintendent of Police to publish a "general or special public notice". The first question to be decided is what is the notice produced. To comply with the section the notice must be a "public notice". This notice is headed "General Notice", not "General Public Notice".

Meaning of Public Notice

Sec. 3 (c) (18) of the Interpretation Ordinance reads:— "A Public Notice means a notice published in the Gazette under this title or published in such other manner as may be prescribed by law". That is to say, a notice is not a "public notice" unless it is gazetted under ply to the Jaffa and Ramleh sub-districts. In spite of the fact that its area of operation is limited I find that the notice is a general notice, for it is applied to all meetings and processions within the area and not limited to any special occasion. It is clearly intended to be a "general public notice".

When a regular procedure for the publication of all laws, regulations, orders, notices is laid down as it is in the Interpretation Ordinance any ordinance which purports to set aside that procedure in special circumstances must be clear and definite in its terms, and, where it purports to substitute another procedure must state that procedure clearly. The Police Ordinance does not in any way set aside the ordinary methods of publication, nor does it substitute any other method.

A Difference in Wording

In connection with this it is to be observed that there is a difference in the wording of sec. 31 under which the District Commissioner can publish a notice and sec. 34 under which the District Superintendent of Police can do so. Sec. 31 authorises the District Commissioner to publish a notice "locally", by which I understand that it may be lawfully published in the locality to which it is applicable without being gazetted. In sec. 34 the word "locally" is omitted. It cannot be assumed that so striking a difference is the result of a slip, so there must be a reason for it. The legislature appears to intend that there shall be a clear difference in the requirements of lawful publication, a greater onus being put on the Senior Police Officer than there is on the senior official of the district.

Gazetting Necessary

I come to the conclusion, therefore, that this notice required to be gazetted before it can be held to have been lawfully published, and under sec. 3 (c) (18) of the Interpretation Ordinance it is not a "public notice" within the definition until this has been done.

Proof of Publication

I now come to the question whether the production of a copy of the notice is sufficient proof that all the necessary formalities of publication have been complied with.

Sec. 9 of the Interpretation Ordinance, omitting the irrelevant words, reads:— "The production of a copy of the Gazette containing any — Public Notice or of any copy of any — Public Notice purporting to be printed under the authority of the Government of Palestine, shall be prima facie evidence, in all

For the Second and Third Accused: M. Stein.

Judgment delivered on September 27.

JUDGMENT

This is a prosecution of 3 persons on a charge of taking part in an unlawful procession contrary to section 34 of the Police Ordinances 1926 to 1934 and section 25 of the Seditious Offences Ordinance.

Charge Badly Laid

The charge was badly laid. Section 34 of the Police Amendment Ordinance 1934 is very long and has various subsections. No subsection was quoted and, when the case came into Court, it was found that the charge should have been laid under sec. 34A. Section 34 is not a section which creates any offence. The amendment of the charge to substitute sec. 34A, was allowed by the Court. Sec. 25 of the Seditious Offences Ordinance only lays notice". The first question to be decided is what is the notice produced. To comply with the section the notice must be a "public notice". This notice is headed "General Notice", not "General Public Notice".

Meaning of Public Notice

Sec. 3 (c) (18) of the Interpretation Ordinance reads: — "A Public Notice means a notice published in the Gazette under this title or published in such other manner as may be prescribed by law". That is to say, a notice is not a "public notice" unless it is gazetted under the heading "Public Notice" or unless the ordinance authorising its publication lays down some other way by which it may be published.

A General Notice

Under the Police Ordinance the notice in this case runs until cancelled and has been drafted to ap-tion until this has been done.

Proof of Publication

I now come to the question whether the production of a copy of the notice is sufficient proof that all the necessary formalities of publication have been complied with.

Sec. 9 of the Interpretation Ordinance, omitting the irrelevant words, reads: — "The production of a copy of the Gazette containing any — Public Notice or of any copy of any — Public Notice purporting to be printed under the authority of the Government of Palestine, shall be prima facie evidence, in all Courts and for all purposes, whatsoever, of the due making and tenor of such — Public Notice".

Unjustifiable Extension

This notice certainly purports to have been printed under the authority of the Government of Palestine, so production of the copy is prima facie evidence of its due making and tenor. Prima facie evidence is rebuttable so the defence could, should they so desire, rebut by evidence the genuineness of the copy produced or the lawful making of the original. That does not arise, however, in this case. But the authority of sec. 9 only goes to the due making and tenor. It says nothing about publication which is a completely different thing. It in no way purports to certify the use made of the document after it has left the hands of the draftsman. It would be an unjustifiable extension of the meaning of the words to hold that they include publication. The production of the document, therefore, is not evidence that it has been properly published. That must be proved independently. It should have been done by production of the Gazette in which it was published together with verbal evidence of local publication. Only the verbal evidence was brought.

I come to the conclusion, therefore, for the foregoing reasons, that there is not evidence before me that the notice was published in the manner which I find to be ne-

'If We Had Known It In 1916'

DESERT BARRIER GUARD TO EGYPT

A waterless waste, 300 miles wide, that provides a natural barrier to any attack on Egypt from the west, was described by Major C. S. Jarvis, Governor of Sinai, Egypt, in a lecture on Sept. 18, before the Royal Central Asian Society in London.

Major Jarvis also spoke of the importance of an oasis in the desert, now occupied by Italians, in the event of an Abyssinian war.

He referred to the Libyan Desert, which stretches across the border of Egypt and Italy's North African territory. Its dryness is relieved only by a scattered chain of oases, and vast sand dunes make it most difficult to traverse.

Major Jarvis said that if our military authorities, during the Great War, had been able to grasp the fact that this desert barred any advance on Egypt they "might have saved us sixpence off the income tax today."

Only 11 Arabs

"Through their failure to do so," Major Jarvis added, "30,000 to 40,000 troops, urgently required elsewhere, were kept watching a perfectly empty desert for nearly a year. Actually eleven Senussi Arabs managed to get across the desert to Dakhla, and it is estimated that they cost us about £2,000,000 a head — a big price for an Arab."

This desert belt is almost as effective a barrier today as it was in 1916. An invading army could advance only along the coast road, and to do that they would require to have command of the sea. The front on which they would have to advance was exceptionally narrow.

"Last autumn," said Major Jarvis, "Italy occupied the tiny oasis of Owienat, on the Egyptian and Sudan borders, about 120 miles from Addis Ababa. She was so insistent that it lay within the Italian Tripolitan frontier that she quite believed it, and has apparently, convinced the Sudan and Egypt also.

"With the threat of war in Abyssinia, the value of this tiny water hole as a fuelling and watering station for aircraft cannot be overlooked."

A HIGHWAY TO THE DESERT

(From Our Own Correspondent)

BAGHDAD. — (By Air Mail) — The long desert journey from Baghdad to Damascus may be bumpless and dustless in the near future. A tender was issued this week by the Government for the construction of an all-weather road, nine and a half metres wide, to start from Ramadi and take a westerly course towards Damascus.

The surfacing of the first fifty-five miles of Iraq's "Great West Road" will be begun before the New Year. The isolated stretch of desert will be teeming with workmen and mechanical devices, since several sections of the thoroughfare will be begun simultaneously.

Syria plans to surface the first forty kilometres eastward, which is the worst stretch in the desert journey, linking Damascus with Khan Abu Shamat, the Syrian frontier control post.

The road will not only shorten the journey between Baghdad and Damascus by several hours, vehicles being able to maintain a high speed throughout, but will eliminate the possibility of losing one's way in the desert.

SYRIAN RECRUITS FOR ERITREA

(From Our Own Correspondent)

BEIRUT, September 29. — The French authorities have ordered the closing of the Italian Bureau which have been urging men to enlist in the service of the army in Eritrea. Passports will no longer be issued for the purpose of enlistment.

This action follows a press campaign and public protests made in the Mosques and churches of Syria and Lebanon.

A letter recently received from one of these Syrian recruits is alleged to have pointed out the poor conditions under which the soldiers are living, alleging that they are forced to labour 10 hours daily in the hot climate, guarded by Italian troops in a kind of concentration camp, like prisoners of war.

"We work on the road and eat only macaroni" is the complaint.

BAGHDAD, Sept. 30. — The

New Labour Quarter Near Kfar Saba

100 FAMILIES TO HAVE HOUSES

Two hundred dunams of land have been acquired from Jewish owners in the vicinity of Kfar Saba for the construction of a new labour quarter, the fifth of its kind in that district, it was announced in "Davar."

The purchase, costing over £P. 10,000, was effected with the help of the Jewish National Fund, the "Nir" Company, and the Kupat Milveh Vehisachon shel Haovdim in Kfar Saba, the co-operative workers' credit union.

The land will be registered in the name of the Jewish National Fund.

Two Sections

Two sections of labourers will be given sites for homesteads namely, agricultural workers of whom there will be 100 and artisans and skilled labourers in other pursuits who are to number sixty.

The units of land will be 1 1/2 dunams for agriculturists and 1 dunam for artisans.

A road which will pass through the large plantation estates in the area as far as the Kalkilieh railway station will also serve the new quarter.

So far £P. 30,000 has been invested in labour suburbs in the district. Building loans are now to be raised for the new quarter.

The Jewish land-owners who sold the 200 dunams are Mr. M. Greidinger, Mr. A. Adelman, and the Orloff heirs.

After Ten Years

MR. ROTHENBERG'S IMPRESSIONS

If peace and security continue in Palestine under the wise and understanding administration of the present High Commissioner, a period of genuine prosperity lies ahead in the nearest future. This prediction was made by Mr. Morris Rothenberg, President of the Zionist Organisation of America, at a reception on Monday night in his honour by the Jewish Agency and other Central Jewish institutions.

Mr. Rothenberg believes that to ensure this prosperity, a more liberal immigration policy to meet the obvious demands of the country must be adopted and that Sir Arthur Wauchoppe must not mar his excellent record by an insistence on a Legislative Council which would bring only fresh disagreement between Jews and Arabs without resulting in any good.

Mr. Rothenberg said that now he found it even more difficult to give expression to his thoughts and feelings regarding Palestine than he did ten years ago when he last visited the country. He saw Haifa as a "great commercial centre" while Tel Aviv which on his last visit was only a "precocious child" had grown into a "strong-limbed confident youth." He found Tel Aviv an inspiring phenomenon, an example of what Jewish energy is capable of, if given a chance.

Soul of Palestine.

After pointing out that there was nothing more stirring than the Jewish agricultural settlement, Mr. Rothenberg said that vastly more remains to be done as this was the very soul of the work in Palestine. The Jews of the world must not relax in their efforts to supply the funds necessary to carry this pressing work forward. It was almost heartbreaking to see under what disadvantages they carry on their labours because the Keren Hayesod is insufficiently supplied with means to meet their demands. Lack of adequate water where it may be had, lack of school houses and hygienic facilities must not be allowed to continue.

With the up-swing of economic conditions in America, much more must be done for the upbuilding of the National Home by the 5,000,000 American Jews, Mr. Rothenberg urged.

The speaker declared himself to be enormously impressed by the work and institutions of the Histadruth and the capability of its leaders. In a country in which the vicissitudes of life are hard and uncertain, and trials are constant, an organisation like the Histadruth, strong in discipline and purpose, faithful to fundamental Zionist ideals, was an asset of inestimable value. "Whatever the shortcomings of the Histadruth may be it nevertheless constitutes the strongest bulwark against unwholesome influences that may at this stage creep into the land, and an effective guardian of the ethical standards towards which we are striving in Palestine, he said.

German Contribution.

Mr. Rothenberg declared that he was quite certain that despite some shortcomings which must be expected in a new immigration, the German immigrants will be found to be among the best that Palestine has had, making a worthy contribution both in economic and cultural values. He felt, however, that the immigration also brings with it elements of danger to the national character of the Homeland which must be guarded against. It is imperative that the Executive and the Keren Hayesod should have at its disposal the necessary national capital to deal with the problems of assimilation which essentially is an educational problem.

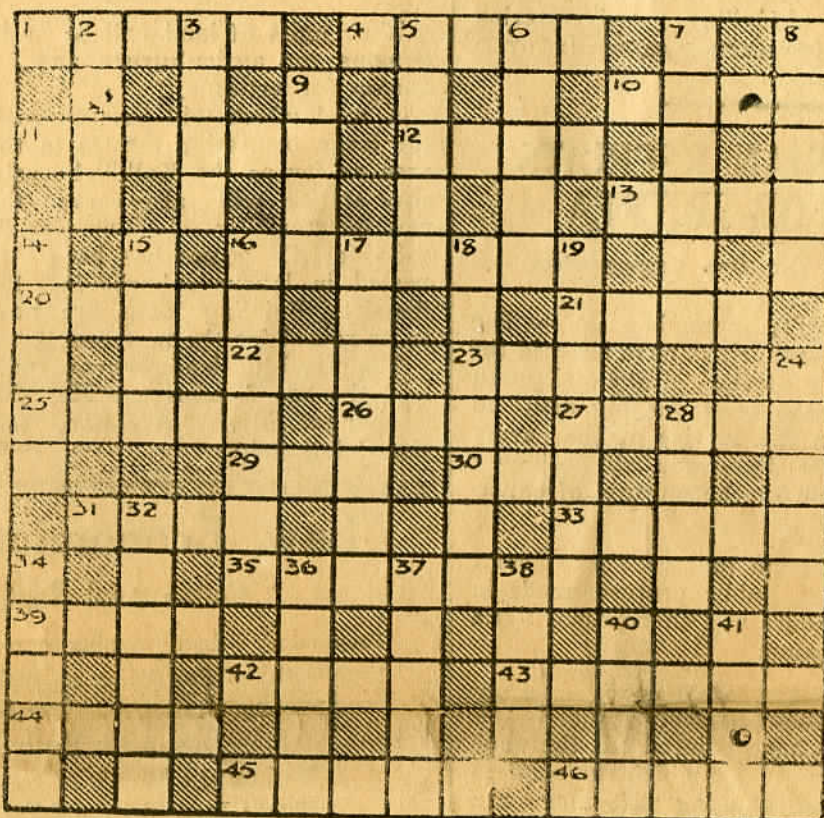

PALESTINE TRADE WITH CZECHOSLOVAKIA

(From Palestine Telegraphic Agency)

PRAGUE, Oct. 1. — A co-operative society, which has been formed to organise and increase exports and import between Czechoslovakia and Palestine is soon to begin its work through the Czechoslovakian Palestine Chamber of Commerce after the return of the director, Herr Reiss, who is chairman of the Citrus Importers section of the Chamber. Reiss is now in Palestine getting into touch with Citrus growers in order to gather useful particulars.

The Chamber has also delegated Doctor Kubalek, the General Secretary, to leave for Palestine in order to study the possibilities of increasing imports and exports between the two countries. He will make plans for the extension of the Czechoslovakian pavillion at the coming Levant Fair.

Ethiopian Troops Moving to Frontier

SOLDIERS OF THE NEGUS FULL OF FIGHT

By LAURENCE STALLINGS

ADDIS ABABA.

The southern tribes are pouring their fighting power into the vast Ethiopian reserves along the Northern border, and the citizens of Addis Ababa remain in a frenzy of expectancy, playing the game of hare and hounds to watch the troops depart. Just now the last of 15,000 Kuolos are departing, and at every hamlet as troops entrain, by African magic the thickets and tukuls emit soldiers, half-uniformed but fully armed. These are followed by hordes of well-wishers and friends, who fight their way into the freight cars as if fully confident of being taken to the fighting zones. As all bear rifles, wear a warklike look, and are possessed of complete truculency, it is impossible to estimate the draft which each train conveys.

They are full of fight, those Kuolos, through they count not on gas or the concentrated fire of modern arms. Scenes around the cars hardly count back to the days of forty horses or eight men; though there are certain phenomena not unknown to the shipping of soldiers in freight cars ... for there are loud and strident claimants to favoured positions by the grilles, just as there are shouts of men and tears of women.

Yesterday, watching more than a thousand of the Kuolo infantry depart ... they are really hoplites, or rural militia — I found it impossible to estimate either the number or equipment of this horde of eager fighters. Because every citizen of Ethiopia, who boasts a lineage, also arms his followers with rifles; and because every free man wears a cartridge belt, a white chamma and at least one vestige of khaki in the barefoot ensemble, all men look to be light-armed infantry. Thus when friends climbed aboard a train yesterday, it was impossible to determine whether a squad or a single simple soldier was embarking. Only when three-fourths of a box-car's belligerent humanity comes tumbling from the doors as the train limps out may one count the denizens who actually are embarked upon the emperor's service. In an effort yesterday to arrive at the first complement of a of half-fordable streams and morasses. Even then, with the most careful counting, estimates of three observers varied, the tally being 500 to 1500 soldiers of all ranks on two trains.

Travelling Light

It is not, I am sure, a lack of discipline among these troops which bewilders the western eye, but a discipline to which such eyes are not accustomed. Surely a troop train means, among other things, principally stacked arms, sentries, and quartermasters aware that all troops, on the even of battle, are amiable and mutual thieves.

One refuses to accept the discipline of Ethiopians as such. There seems to be no baggage, no impedimenta. Somewhere it seems, a word is given much as a note is sounded when bees swarm. It is a fearsome, natural thing, this vast swarming towards a rail line, when woods and vales disgorge such shouting mobs of people, the soldiers among them determined only by the number which remains aboard at the train's departure.

Yesterday men poured upon the tracks at train departure, followed by friends and womenfolk who clung to them until the last moment. Yet these women folk were not the Gallas or Amharics of the region, but lean, black plateau men from down Kenya way. The women had followed their men to this swarming rendezvous, followed them, in the pitch of the rainy season, over vast mountain chains and arduous trails. They seemed to appear out of nowhere, by sheer African necromancy. There was something spontaneous about this black gathering; it was hardly a leavetaking, but a jubilee, a chorus of halelujahs, with a continual coming and going of riflemen from box-cars in the frenzied activity of a beehive. There was neither deportment or reason, to a western eye, in this scurrying from car to car in a wild passion of leavetaking.

Money Belts

It was impossible to discover the number of rounds of ammunition supplied each Kuolo soldier upon leaving the capital area. A rifle cartridge, of course, is wealth in hunters' country, and in a kingdom of warriors it is coin of the realm.

money belts packed with golden sovereigns, with a corresponding injunction from the supply sergeant to keep them for use near the front.

Thus the rumour was passed that the Kuolos would be issued 220 round of ammunition, for Mauser rifles, immediately upon the hour of departure. This issue was to occur upon the Ras Terterte Plain; or it was to be issued in the hunts before the War Department; or it was to take place in a vast sheep meadow (the place was vile with mud) some seven miles from the radio station, which was in turn six nearly impassable miles away. Finally, it was to be issued at Akhaki, some thirty kilometers, negotiable only by rail, from the capital.

There was immediately at the capital a corner on saddle mules, many for correspondents who counted on both fingers the years since they were in the saddle, and who now prepared, in the frantic search for newsy tidbits here, to scour unbroken country in four months of equatorial rains nine thousand feet above the sea.

One correspondent, threading through two halts of the train (it moved at corresponding pace) saw exactly two cases of fabulous small-arms ammunition, that goldconda load of the Gallas. These two were escorted by a headman as they were placed upon the gay-caparisoned saddle of a fine riding mule. The donor of the ammunition led this mule by bridle, himself armed in red velvet covered scimitar, German-made cheap-bedixed dagger, Maunlicher rifle and a acarlet-leather set of bandoliers exhibiting his own gleaming personal wealth in cartridges.

A man may carry, with ease if he is hardy, some 220 cartridges in time of war. The headman wore lightly, as personal adornment of his manliness, double that number with comfort. Leading his premium riding mule, on whose back rested the two oblong cases of ammunition, he was flanked and outridden by followers to the number of fifty, half of whom carried rifles new in Kipling's hey-day, the other half with lance hafts from which the points, for city wear, had been temporarily removed.

Secret Service

It was woe for one in the way of this caravan; had it carried a sacrament there could have been no more bee-line purpose to it. It overrode the milling led-men of other factions and went straight to a car door. The whole caravan seemed then borne upon a flood of hands and thus raised and elevated into the car which at once became a tin of animated sardines. As to the variety, number or mark of this ammunition, this observer remains ignorant. There was a stencil upon the cases; perhaps it read "Ammunition Sur" but one cannot be sure. It might have been a family hoard passed on two generations since the Mahdi's day until just such a time of national honour; again, such is the ignorance of western eyes, it may have been an official issue, duly requisitioned and memorandum-receipted in best army style.

At any rate, as the troop train disgorged its well-wishers and began its long portage of southern fighters to the fierce lands of the Tigre, women clung tear-eyed to grim determined men as ever were; and no western eye knew their service, strength or complement. For here was an army which constituted its own secret service and moved on underground communications superior to any staff work that the west with its helplessness until formally regimented, might ever know.

WHY THE SACLESS VACUMATIC

—with Ever-Visible Ink Supply and 102% More of It—

DOES WHAT NO PREVIOUS PEN CAN DO!

Only when three-fourths of a box-car's belligerent humanity comes tumbling from the doors as the train limps out may one count the denizens who actually are embarked upon the emperor's service. A rifle cartridge, of course, is wealth in hunters' country, and in a kingdom of warriors it is coin of the realm. And why Busy, Fast Writing People will never again be Slowed Down by Pens that Run Dry in the Midst of Their Work . . .

YOUTH with its vigorous spirit has been quick to lead the great procession of alert-brained, busy, fast-writing people who are carrying this utterly new and basically different pen invention.

Invented by an eminent scientist, developed and perfected by Parker, the VACUMATIC forever ends the last objection to a fountain pen—ends the annoyance of running out of ink in the midst of busy writing. Believe it or not, this pen simply cannot run dry unless the user lets it. Not the first sacless pen but the first sacless pen without piston pump or valves, with nothing to render it useless later. And it is guaranteed mechanically perfect.

Thus Parker Pens are now made two ways—the famous leverless Parker Duofold (with sac) and the VACUMATIC (sacless) in four splendid models. Whichever you choose, because both are Parker, you cannot go wrong.

Be sure to see the VACUMATIC—see how this miracle pen fills by vacuum. See the ink rush in and fill it—102% more ink than held by a rubber sac pen of equal size.

And write different ways with the unique reversible nib fitted in the Maxima and Major models—a nib of precious platinum and gold, iridium-tipped, flawlessly smooth, that writes both ways.

A gifted designer, specially commissioned by Parker, originated its non-breakable, laminated barrel—built up ring upon ring of Pearl and Jet. And more astonishing still, each layer is translucent—when the pen is held to the light shows you the ink within—shows you days ahead when the pen needs refilling. Standard models have barrels of translucent Marble effects.

Save your old pen for sentiment, if you like, but make yourself—or someone else—a gift of the one pen the world has always wanted but could not have until now.

WHAT INK?...WE ARE OFTEN ASKED

The answer is Parker QUINK—a marvellous new writing ink—containing a harmless secret solvent that makes a fountain pen clean itself as it writes. For QUINK dissolves all sediment and gunk left by ordinary inks. Hence your pen starts quickly—every time. No need to shake it to start the ink flow. Parker QUINK is silk-strained, dries faster on paper than ordinary ink yet takes longer to dry in the pen. It dries bold and clear even if blotted immediately. The Duce and "The Blackest Injustice"

Signor Mussolini's "test-mobilisation" of Fascist Italy — which was, in effect, but a framework for a patriotic war-oration to the Italian people — was smoothly achieved on Wednesday. Both inside and outside Italy the prevalent expectation was that this "mobilisation" would be the signal that the time was come for Italy to strike her long-prepared blow; and today's news shows that this expectation is being confirmed; for the war has in fact started. But perhaps even more, it was a device to "put across" the Italian case in more sharply defined outline than hitherto. To this extent Signor Mussolini's speech on Wednesday evening, on the very eve of actual hostilities, in spite of being overcharged with rhetorical device, is worth examination, to see what justification there is for the Duce's defiance of the entire world.

Throughout the past six months of League activities resulting from the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, it has been obvious that Italy has been thinking in a different plane of ideas from most of the rest of the world. Excluding Italy, the League-Powers, headed by Great Britain, have seen in Italian conduct nothing but a glaring example of aggression, a very crude threat to disturb international peace, a gross and imminent crime of precisely the type which the League was set up to prevent; and this crime was about to be perpetrated by a leading member of the group of nations which had sworn to suppress such crimes in the future. So far as Italy's attitude was understood at all, it was regarded as a unilateral attempt to achieve advantages which, so far as they could rightly be claimed, should properly be granted by peaceable means through the collective action of the League. There was even willingness to admit the justification of much of Italy's ambition and desire for expansion; but the other League-Powers, led by Great Britain, determined to resist to the utmost Italy's intention to seek her own ends by her own armed might at the expense of another member of the League.

THE SOLEMN CHARGE

And now, we learn, on Signor Mussolini's authority, that such a view of Italy's East African adventure is nothing less than "blackest injustice". Nobody would willingly treat Italy with the blackest injustice, and it is startling to hear this charge broadcast so solemnly to the world. It is, probably, only during the last few days that the public, outside Italy, has begun to grasp the real nature of Italy's grievance. Fundamentally that grievance consists in this: that while most of the world has seen in the League a weapon that was being forged, by painfully slow degrees, for the furtherance of international justice, Italy, from the League's very birth, has seen in it only a memorial of Italy's wrongs. Italy's losses in the World War, the Duce reminds us, were a million dead and missing and a million wounded; she was on the side of the victor-Powers, yet only the driest and most worthless crumbs of reward fell to her; though her colonial ambitions were well-enough known, the spoils, Germany's colonial possessions, were distributed solely among France, Great Britain, the Union of South Africa, New Zealand, Australia, and Japan: Italy received none.

WHY WORRY ABOUT WAR?

My dear Ernest,

I am sorry I have not written for a fortnight but the fact is that I have been rather concentrating on the international situation.

You see, out here we take our international situations rather seriously. When, for instance, we hear that the sole achievement of the Committee of Five has been the appointment of a sub-Committee of Four we just automatically chase round to remove our life's savings from the small bank with the larger rates of interest and place it in the slightly larger bank with the slightly smaller rate of interest. Then, when the rumour reaches us that the Chairman of the sub-Committee of Four has sent out in desperation for a couple of packs of cards and some bridge scorers, we take our two and a half piastres off to the yet larger bank with the even lower rate of interest until, by the time the Committee of One is on the job, our money is so safe that is earning practically nothing at all. Meantime small bankers with high blood pressures perspire freely as they rush about in an attempt to track down and borrow back their wandering deposits.

Incidentally you should know that getting money out of a bank here is not the easy job you might imagine it to be. Having stood in a queue for five or ten minutes it is a little discouraging to discover that the gentlemen behind the counter with whom you have at last established contact is only a 'cheque-looker-atter' and that you have to go through the whole performance again before your two and a half piastres are handed over.

But I am wandering from the war. It is quite amazing how knowledgeable people have become about things that no one knew anything at all about a few months ago. A bookseller tells me that the "Treaty of Peace" is quite a good seller today; Article XVI being bandied about freely and elderly ladies are to be heard calling for sanctions as firmly as though they were cups of camomile tea.

Did he mean to imply that Italy would think less unfavourably of a Committee of Four and possibly welcome a Committee of Five? Or did he simply mean that he thought the whole machinery of the League was plain... but no, that is out of the question.

"Manoeuvres"

The most everyday events, too, become charged with enormous significance. The familiar sight of the disinterment of drain pipes has suddenly become "a measure of defensive fortification" and the arrival of anything remotely resembling a British ship is a naval manoeuvre of the first magnitude and importance.

Personally, having had some slight experience of the ponderous march of events in Government circles I cannot believe that the present dispositions of the armed forces could have been planned much before 1927, but humour credits Whitehall with a degree of foresight and perspicacity of which, I feel sure, it is entirely innocent.

By the way, there is a rumour going around that through some carelessness or other in the mailing department the document containing the findings of the Committee of Five got mixed up with Mr. Eden's washing list and that the mistake was only discovered and rectified after the latter document had been wholeheartedly accepted by Ethiopia as a basis for settlement and as firmly rejected by Italy as an insufficient recognition of her legitimate colonial aspirations.

War To End War

Meantime our old war time friends, the table top tacticians, are busily moving their cruets, ashtrays, knives, forks and tomato sauce around in noiseless combat, demonstrating how Mussolini will put an end to the combat in double quick time or, alternatively, how the Abyssinians will manage to carry on the struggle for the next decade or two, and, as though to act as a timely deterrent, we have recently had a revival of the film "All Quiet"—which seems to me to be about as efficacious as showing

TEL AVIV'S BUDGET OVER £P. 300,000

Revised estimates for the Municipality of Tel Aviv were published in the current Palestine Gazette, substituting those which appeared in the Gazette of August 1.

They make provision for a total revenue of £P.309,726 (including a Government grant-in-aid of £P. 19,926) and total ordinary and extraordinary expenditure of £P. 336,367.

This leaves an estimated deficit for the year 1934/35 of £P.26,641.

The 1933/34 Total

The actual revenue for 1933/34 was £P206,060, which was an increase of £P.18,000 over the estimates. Actual expenditure in the previous fiscal year amounted to £P. 195,902, about £P.3,000 more than the estimated figure.

The largest item of estimated expenditure for 1934/35 was £P. 71,905 for health services. In the year before the amount expended on health was £P.52,176.

Education expenditure during 1934/35 was £P.65,694, or almost double the figure of £P.30,183 for the preceding fiscal year.

The Duce and "The Blackest Injustice"

Signor Mussolini's "test-mobilisation" of Fascist Italy — which was, in effect, but a framework for a patriotic war-oration to the Italian people — was smoothly achieved on Wednesday. Both inside and outside Italy the prevalent expectation was that this "mobilisation" would be the signal that the time was come for Italy to strike her long-prepared blow; and today's news shows that this expectation is being confirmed; for the war has in fact started. But perhaps even more, it was a device to "put across" the Italian case in more sharply defined outline than hitherto. To this extent Signor Mussolini's speech on Wednesday evening, on the very eve of actual hostilities, in spite of being overcharged with rhetorical device, is worth examination, to see what justification there is for the Duce's defiance of the entire world.

the public, outside Italy, has begun to grasp the real nature of Italy's grievance. Fundamentally that grievance consists in this: that while most of the world has seen in the League a weapon that was being forged, by painfully slow degrees, for the furtherance of international justice, Italy, from the League's very birth, has seen in it only a memorial of Italy's wrongs. Italy's losses in the World War, the Duce reminds us, were a million dead and missing and a million wounded; she was on the side of the victor-Powers, yet only the driest and most worthless crumbs of reward fell to her; though her colonial ambitions were well-enough known, the spoils, Germany's colonial possessions, were distributed solely among France, Great Britain, the Union of South Africa, New Zealand, Australia, and Japan; Italy received none.

No hope (so the Italian argument runs) which Italy had in the League had been fulfilled. The League has not reformed, but only become more rigid in its adherence to the first injustices. Italy used to have an enthusiastic "Society for the League of Nations," the most active society of its kind in any of the member-States. But that was in the days when Italian statesmen still believed in the possibility of League reform. Then came Fascism. If for pre-Fascist politicians the League was an institution which was to be improved, for the Fascists it became, as the years went by, an enemy to be beaten — an instrument by which England and France were dominating the world, a talking-shop, a den of liberals, pacifists, freemasons; and so forth.

"Blackest injustice", therefore, is it in Italian eyes for such a League, at such a time as this, after all Italy's protracted efforts, after she has turned every Italian, from twelve years old to fifty, into fighting Fascists — "blackest injustice" is it for such a League to attempt to dictate to such an Italy!

Steps have now been taken, steps almost irrevocable, which render any "dictation" to Italy as futile as Mussolini meant them to be when he proclaimed that "nothing can stop us". What hope is there now of moderation? Yet France, a telegram elsewhere in this issue tells us, is "not abandoning her moderating action," and yesterday there were still plans afoot for still another meeting tomorrow of the League Council, to be attended by Baron Aloisi among the rest.

The world must keep its head, and we in Palestine stand to lose all we have gained if we lose faith. We must take what comfort we can from the knowledge that it is not intended by Great Britain that the sanctions against Italy — now perhaps unavoidable — should be of a nature to accentuate the international tension and that, quoting from a no doubt authoritative Reuter telegram, "European complications in the Mediterranean seem to be avoided."

War. It is quite amazing how knowledgeable people have become about things that no one knew anything at all about a few months ago. A bookseller tells me that the "Treaty of Peace" is quite a good seller today; Article XVI being bandied about freely and elderly ladies are to be heard calling for sanctions as firmly as though they were cups of camomile tea.

Mysterious Source

I must confess that I myself got quite worked up when I heard that Italy was likely to get ahold of the Sources of the Nile.

It came as rather a shock because I had some sort of vague idea that the Sources of the Nile were still something in the nature of a mystery and that no-one quite knew where they were to be found.

It appears, however, that they have been in Abyssinia all the time, which all seems very sinister and disturbing. I cannot quite see what the Italians will do with the thing when they get it; perhaps they will write rude letters, make them into paper boats and send them sailing down the Nile to spread disaffection amongst the natives. Anyway, it's a distinctly bad business.

Naturally, everything that happens at Geneva is tremendous news. If the Italian delegate blows his nose with more than customary resonance speculation is rife as to its exact significance, coming as it did during a particularly vital

So Life goes on, and it seems a trifle ridiculous that whilst Mussolini mounted on a box of ammunition issues his stirring call to arms and whilst such mighty issues tremble in the balance, I should be sitting here calmly writing a trivial letter home and subscribing myself, in my disarming way.

Yours fraternally,

WHAT'S IN A NAME Police Officer's New Surname

Sentimental or patriotic reasons have in the past led newcomers to Palestine to change their names for more resounding patronymics.

A Palestine Police officer has now adopted the same course.

A Gazette announcement yesterday says that Mr. J. P. I. Ford, acting Assistant Superintendent of Police, will in future be known as "Fforde."

It is presumed that the second "f" and the "e" will remain, for phonetic purposes, strictly silent.

New Government Offices Here

The first step towards providing new Government Offices in Jerusalem has been announced in the publication of an order under the Expropriation of Land Ordinances.

The construction of such offices has been certified as an undertaking of a public nature.

The site, referred to, it is presumed, is near the King David Hotel, on Julian's Way.

TELEPHONE EXTENSIONS SANCTIONED

Authority was received yesterday by the Department of Posts and Telegraphs to proceed with the measures for extending the telephone exchanges in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv, it was learned yesterday in a reliable quarter.

Special attention will be paid to expedite the new arrangements for a comprehensive telephone system in Tel Aviv.

OBITUARY DR. JACOB BLUSTEIN (SELA)

Grapefruit Season Begins

Grape fruit may be exported from Palestine from the first day of October and the first consignments of fruit are already being marketed. The earliest crop ripens in the Jordan Valley and then in Emek Jezreel, and fruit from these places has been available for a couple of weeks.

The Jordan crop is also now being gathered, states "Davar."

On the whole the fruit is in good condition: unlike the oranges the grapefruit was not affected by this year's severe khamsins. It is expected that over a million and a quarter cases of grape fruit will be gathered in Palestine this season. Prices in England are now favourable and it is important that only fruit of good colour and taste be sent now, at the beginning of the season, as the first supplies influence subsequent prices.

FIVE CONVICTED IN MACHPELAH CASE

Five of the ten followers of the Rabbi of Gur, who were arrested recently, were yesterday found guilty of assaulting and insulting a policeman at the Cave of Machpelah in Hebron last Wednesday and were sentenced by the Jerusalem District Commissioner to pay a fine of LP. 2 or to eight days imprisonment. The other five were acquitted.

In his judgment the Jerusalem District Commissioner, Mr. J. E. F. Campbell, stated that the Constable acted according to his instructions when he ordered a group of 30 to 40 persons not to ascend further in the Cave of Machpelah. His instructions were ignored, he was knocked down and had to call for help. The Court believed the material facts adduced in the evidence for the prosecution and found five of the accused guilty of both charges.

The patent duty of those other five, states the judgment, was to assist the constable in restoring order and there was evidence that some members in the crowd had no sympathy with the contempt of authority which was being committed in their presence.

Before sentence was passed, Dr. Buxbaum, who appeared for the accused, asked the Court to take into consideration the mitigating circumstances in the case. The accused, he said, accompanied their Rabbi, whom they considered to be a holy man to the Cave of Machpelah. They were roused to religious frenzy when they saw their Rabbi touched. They were future Rabbis and men of good character.

The District Commissioner stated that, taking into account the mitigating circumstances, he would pass sentence of a fine of LP. 2 on each of the accused. In case of non-payment of the fine the

The largest item is that of £P. 130,280 for the Palestine Railways. Of this sum, £P.64,975 was disbursed under the head of "Extraordinary Expenditure."

The mystery sum in the general supplementary appropriation is £P. 112,462 for "Miscellaneous." No particulars are given.

CHIEF SECRETARY'S HOUSE

Wednesday, October 2

The Officer Administering the Government and Mrs. Hathorn Hall, gave a dinner party at which the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Pudsey, Mr. and Mrs. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Stewart, and Mrs. Schweitzer.

Thursday, October 3.

The Officer Administering the Government, accompanied by Mr. Pollock and the A.D.C., flew to Gaza this morning. He was met by the D.S.P., Mr. Lucie-Smith and by Abdul Razzak Eff. Kleibo. After being shown over the sulphur works and quarries by Mr. Williams, he visited the Municipal Offices, where he discussed with the Mayor, Fehmi Bey Hussein, the question of a drainage scheme for Gaza and other matters concerning the development of the town. He then visited the Municipal Gardens and was shown the stables and store-house under construction and was introduced to the Councilors who are superintending this work.

After driving along the Port Road and seeing the building development in progress, Mr. Hall went to Ali Munter, where a picnic lunch was taken, at which Mr. Pollock, Mr. Lucie Smith, Abdul Razzak Eff. Kleibo and Fahmi Bey Hussein were present.

After luncheon the Officer Administering the Government motored to Beersheba, where he discussed with the District Officer, Aref Eff. FISH DINNERS

By LILIAN CORNFELD

Canned salmon or tuna fish, dried or smoked fish all have good food value, if not too salty, and can be prepared in many tasty ways.

No American restaurant of any standing would offer a menu that did not contain Filet of Sole with tartar sauce, for this is the most popular fish dish there outside of oysters.

Filet of Sole — Tartar Sauce

Have your fishmonger skin and bone as many sole as desired. Rub them over with salt and a little pepper, dip each filet in flour, then in egg, then in matzo meal or bread crumbs and fry in deep hot fat just until brown. Serve at once with a slice of lemon and tartar sauce. French fried potatoes, lettuce and tomato salad are good with this dinner.

Tartar Sauce

To ordinary mayonnaise add chopped pickles, chopped olives, and parsley. Capers are good too.

Fish a la King

Stew fish steaks in a little water seasoned with salt, pepper, a chopped onion, and celery just until the flesh leaves the centre bone. Then melt 2 Tablespoons of butter in a skillet and brown 3 Tablespoons of flour in it, stirring all the time. Add 1/2 cup of the juice in which the fish was cooked and 1/2 cup of milk and boil together until smooth. May be seasoned with pimentoes, or mushrooms, a little lemon juice, salt and pepper. Add the fish which is free from bones and serve piping hot with rounds of buttered toast. Garnish with hard boiled egg. This is good as an entree. Served with buttered stringbeans or peas and carrots it makes a nice luncheon dish.

Spiced Molded Fish

2 onions
4 oklahs fish steaks
1/2 cup of vinegar
2 cups of water
6 cloves
3 bay leaves
1/2 t salt, 1/4 t pepper, 1 t sugar
1 Tablespoon gelatine
1 egg yolk

Cook the fish in the water and vinegar and spices for 3/4 hour. Remove the fish and separate the flesh from the bones. Cook the liqueur until there are about 2 cups or less. Add the gelatine which has been softened in cold water and the egg yolk. Strain over the fish and set in ice box until the liquid jellies. This can keep for 2 or 3 days on ice. Serves 6.

FEMININE REFLECTIONS

GROOMING THE PRAM

By MRS. GWENDOLYN BARRY

What a joy to every mother is a new pram, and what a sorry sight it can become after six months' wear.

Certainly the average mother of a young baby has little time to devote to beautifying her child's carriage — the needs of the little one generally make very heavy demands on her time. The prams of today, however, are, fortunately, so easily cared for that a few minutes each day will be found sufficient to keep the carriage not only spick and span as regards looks, but healthful as well, for a dirty pram, like any other dirty object, may be a fertile breeding place for germs.

Daily Routine

The daily care of baby's carriage is a matter of moments only — a wipe with a soft duster inside and out, both before and after use.

If the pram has been out in the rain or damp, then special care must be taken to see that all the plated parts (most of them are chromium-plated nowadays) are absolutely dried. Dry the tyres also and see that no water is allowed to lodge on the hood or apron. The hood should always be opened at night to prevent cracking.

In addition to this daily care, the carriage should be subjected periodically (how often will depend on individual circumstances and conditions) to a more thorough cleaning. It should be washed inside and out with a soft sponge wrung out of cold water, and dried quickly with a large soft duster, then polished with good furniture-cream or linseed oil. The chromium-plated fittings, if they are kept clean daily, will need only polishing with a soft cloth, after being wiped over with a damp sponge.

Mrs. Pepys's Diary

FRIDAY:

Brass and Silver

For any of my readers who chance to be putting their furniture in store, or for some reason wish to put away objects of brass or silver, I now write of a very good hint to prevent discolouration.

The hood and apron, if made of leather, will benefit from an application of olive oil, but on no account must oil be used on rubber duck hoods or aprons. These should simply be wiped over with a damp cloth, and dried immediately. A leather hood which has been allowed to get shabby (and it is the hood which usually shows the first signs of wear in a pram) may sometimes be improved by a coat of black car hood paint.

There seems to be no satisfactory method of rejuvenating a hood of rubber cloth, so mothers should take particular care to see that it is not allowed to deteriorate by neglecting the necessary daily care.

Don't forget the drop of oil for the axles of the wheels occasionally, and for a pram which must be out in the rain a good deal, many mothers find that a coat of tyre-paint helps to preserve the rubber.

A MODERN CLEOPATRA

"Miss Universe" Crowned at Brussels
Though the world may be facing the gravest political complications, the age-old lure of beauty-seeking has not lessened even in these times.

An International Beauty Competition has just closed at Brussels, after the election of a "Miss Universe."

She is (according to Reuter) Miss Charlotte Wassef, of Egypt.

Previously she had "reigned" over the beauty of Egypt; now her empire encompasses the terrestrial sphere.

Plans for the Wedding of the Duke of Gloucester

LONDON, September 25. — Immediately on his return to London, Dr. Foxley Norris, Dean of Westminster, had a consultation with Lord Chamberlain and Lord Cromer, concerning the details of the service at the marriage in Westminster Abbey of the Duke of Gloucester and Lady Alice Scott on November 6th. At the same time the Dean's Chapter office, the Office of Works, and the firm of contractors which attended to part of the construction of extra seating in the Abbey at the wedding of the Duke and Duchess of Kent had lengthy discussions on the provision of special stands for guests, using the plan of seating provided at the former royal marriage.

Though the wedding is to be much less international than was the case of the marriage of the Duke and Duchess of Kent, some 600 extra seats will be built in tier stands in the north and south transepts and in the nave. There will be accommodation for 2,000 people in existing pews and chairs. Work on the building of the stands will begin almost at once, and it is understood that the pulpit will be removed from the side of the High Altar so that the view of guests may be unimpeded.

12th March, 1932
Dear Sirs,
I feel sure the enclosed photograph of my three little girls will interest you. They have all been brought up on your Milk Food and you will see how healthy they are. They have not suffered from any of the petty illnesses to which so many children are subject, and I am convinced this is due to their regular diet of Cow & Gate.
They are well above the average in intelligence and I am sure it would be impossible to meet bonnier children. You may make whatever use you like of this letter and photograph.
Yours faithfully,
(Mrs.) R. I. Weinberg

The Central Committee has applied to the Government to confirm the establishment of the school and to recognise the institution as a school for qualified nurses. The training course will be for three years.

AUTUMN BRIDES

Colour schemes of autumn brides will not only be followed rigidly in the choice of bridesmaids' frocks and church decorations but will even apply to the flowers used at the reception and to the wedding cake. Nowadays the cake is garlanded with flowers to match the bridesmaids' headdresses. Despite slimming diets, wedding cake is extremely popular in Mayfair, even in a season when guests go from one bridal reception to another. Another speciality of autumn wedding receptions will be chocolate biscuits in the form of autumn leaves.

Eleven semi-urban residential centres in the vicinity of Tel Aviv are involved in a new plan of social welfare work drawn up by the Department of Social Service of the Vaad Leumi, in cooperation with the Ramat Gan Local Council and adjacent settlements.

Social service headquarters are to be set up at Ramat Gan, just outside Tel Aviv, with branch offices in Bnei Brak, Schunat Borocho, and Nachlat Isaac. Other places to be served will be Givath-ha'Rambam, Schunat Arlosoroff, Sheinkin, Nahlat Ganim, Kiriath Joseph, Ramat Isaac and Tel-Benjamin.

Form of Organisation.

Local committees with a central council for the whole area have already been elected, and contributions will be made towards estimated expenditure.

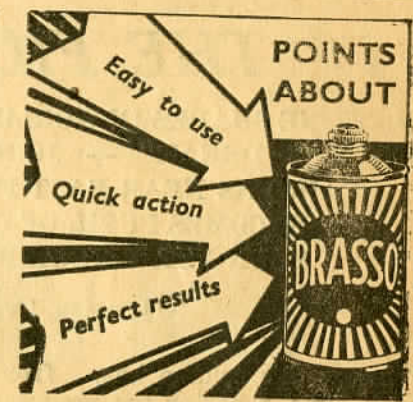

A schedule of hours during which callers may have the service of the special workers appointed has been mapped out.

The special workers are Mrs. Schechter, who has had considerable experience in this kind of work in Berlin, and Mrs. Danziger, who completed a course recently in Jerusalem and was employed in the Social Service bureau here.

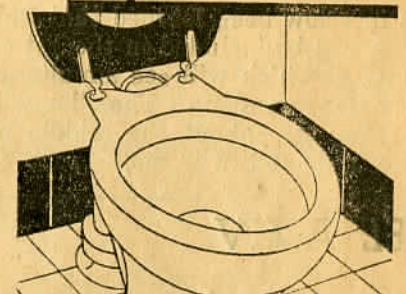

INDUSTRY IN AIN HAROD

This film, which was released in London only a fortnight ago, won the prize as the best directed film in the Third International Film Exhibition held recently in Vienna. It was the last film in which Dietrich was directed by Joseph Von Sternberg. Her present director is Frank Borzage.

It is believed that the cinema pendulum is swinging from Egypt to Palestine. Until recently Cairo was the chosen child of the Middle East. But now, owing to recent developments in Palestine, leading film firms are casting their eyes in this direction. Already several leading American firms such as Paramount and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer have their headquarters for Iraq, Syria, Iran and Aden in Palestine.

Mr. H. G. Wells is leaving England for Hollywood in about a month's time to become a pupil of Charlie Chaplin. Although the visit is private, Mr. Wells says that it is "part of my education." He is not content with having mastered the technique of writing for the films — which he learned patiently during his 18 months' preparation of the three London Film Productions, "Things to Come," "The Man Who Worked Miracles" and "Food of the Gods." He now wants to learn all he can about studio management.

A Dog's Life

You never can tell who will steal a picture. When Darryl Zanuck co-starred Loretta Young and Clark Gable in "The Call of the Wild," he little dreamed that the fan mail and phone calls would all go to Buck, the St. Bernard youngster, who played in the piece.

Well, when box-office returns were all estimated, Zanuck decided that he would star Buck in a film of his own. So "The Country Beyond" will give the young bow-wow a billing as big as the famed Rin-Tin-Tin received in his heyday.

Buck is young, and a trifle temperamental if one can believe all the stories that drifted back from the "Call of the Wild" set.

A £5,000 Wardrobe

The most extensive wardrobe in Hollywood is worth £5,000 and it is all out of date.

The actor, Lucien Littlefield owns it. He gathered it carefully during the many years of his acting careers — hundreds of top hats of every generation, gaiters of the Victorian period, coats dating from Hannibal to the Prince of Wales, trousers skin-tight or Oxford bags.

He keeps all the costumes in a special room in his Hollywood home, together with hundreds of wigs, toupees and a mass of make-up material. Two costume companies and a museum have offered Mr. Littlefield £5,000 for his collection, but he declares he will never part with it until the day he retires from the stage and screen.

Hollywood Stations

A note from Hollywood points out that the new picture titles sound like the conductor calling stations: "San Francisco," "Nevada," "Colorado," "Palm Springs," "Yellowstone." It adds that the charm of these places has hit the standing under a fine Renoir in his London flat, there was a kind of momentary shiver and then the broad schoolboy features were drawn into the high, fierce contour of the Cyrano of fiction. "This," he said, "is a good nose. I shall use it. We've been trying to get the right one for weeks. Such a fraction of difference in the modelling and it alters the whole face. On the screen you have to remember that you are playing right up against your audience and you daren't exaggerate by a hair's breadth."

Chaplin Again

You can have your Charlie Chaplin, too, during this forthcoming season, when his picture — a story of mass production in a great factory — presents him at his outlandish best. Later on he will make a picture with Paulette Goddard which will be in more serious dramatic vein, Chaplin, as a member of United Artists, will have to make more pictures than formerly.

Sam Goldwyn will make his usual six, but without the much publised Anna Sten this time. "Dark Angel," with March and Oberon, is almost ready for preview. "Barbary Coast" will soon be in the cutting room; Miriam Hopkins in this one.

And of course "Dodsworth," for which $160,000 (£32,000) has been paid and which for two years was the prime attraction of Broadway.

Mary Pickford will release two pictures and Alexander Korda will release five English-made films in America. One of the most interesting of these will be "One Hundred Years From Now," which H. G. Wells has written, and "The man Who Could Work Miracles," also from the same author, with Roland Young in the lead. Charles Laughton will appear in "The Lion Of Mayfair" by Robert Sherwood.

This resume touches but lightly on what is going on in Cineland. Full listing of the productions would take limitless space. The Paramount setup contains such paradoxes as the Pulitzer prize play, "So Red The Rose," Merimee's "Carmen" with Bizet music, "Peter Ibbetson" of Du Maurier, Kipling's "The Light that Failed," "Hopalong Cassidy," "National Velvet" and "Anything Goes."

"Captain Blood" will do business in the same season as "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Anthony Adolph's "Frederic March" will the Cagney releases, the latest of which is "The Irish In Us."

Columbia has Grace Moore in another "single" to follow "Love Me Forever" and Michael Bartlett in "I Pagliacci," if the studio can get an American release for some of this music. "Lost Horizons," with Colman, will also be from this studio.

Hollywood Stations

A note from Hollywood points out that the new picture titles sound like the conductor calling stations: "San Francisco," "Nevada," "Colorado," "Palm Springs," "Yellowstone." It adds that the charm of these places has hit the screen now that the charm of sex is banned by censors.

The same correspondent says that "Peasants," the new Soviet film is as good as anything the Russians have ever done. It is hearty, gay and bold.

"Song of Ceylon"

Mr. John Grierson's new documentary film, "Song of Ceylon" described as a "lyrical interpretation of native life" has been chosen to open the autumn season at the Curzon Cinema this week. The London correspondent of The Palestine Post writes that, like most of Mr. Grierson's work, the subject is greatly enhanced by some beautiful photography and picturesque detail. The object of the film is to show how modern civilisation has left unaltered the lives and faith of the natives. The ordinary devices of advanced photography, scenes taken from unusual angles or figures cut by the edge of a picture are freely used as is the genuine music of the country.

The most important part of the film, "Cyrano de Bergerac" which London Films is now making with Charles Laughton in the lead, will be the nose—the most celebrated in theatrical history of which the French gallants cried, "Vraiment, il exagere." It is, as the occasion demands, a nose of note. Even in the hand, a yellowish cap of soft rubber, pierced with long nostrils, it has character. When Laughton put it on, in his grey modern suit,

"Captain Blood" will do business in the same season as "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Anthony Adverse, with Frederic March, will be another to come in on this release. Then will follow along all the contract players' vehicles — Paul Muni in "Dr. Socrates" and leaving for Jibuti today. Some days ago, many of the Legation's documents had been transferred to the railway station, and a large quantity destroyed.

The Italian Consul at Adowa is reported to have been arrested by the Governor, Ras Seyum.

Orders from Rome

At Rome, it was announced yesterday morning that General Del Bono, the Italian Commander-in-Chief in East Africa, had "ordered into action troops occupying advanced positions beyond our lines."

This was described as a measure of self-defence, involving the occupation of strategic points in view of Ethiopia's general mobilisation and important troops movements.

NO OFFENSIVE IN EUROPE

It was learnt from French official circles in Paris yesterday that Signor Cerutti, the Italian Ambassador, saw M. Laval on Wednesday with the object of renewing the assurance that Italy would in no case take the initiative of offensive action in Europe.

She would rest strictly on the defensive in the Mediterranean if only economic and financial sanctions were applied.

It was stressed in Paris that while Great Britain has made known that she will not take action except collectively, France was not abandoning her moderating action.

Well-informed quarters believe that sanctions would not in any event be of so excessive a nature as to accentuate international tension, and that European complications in the Mediterranean might therefore be avoided.

LEAGUE COUNCIL MEETS

It was announced at Geneva yesterday, after the Ethiopian Note had been received, that a meeting of the Council had been summoned for 10.30 o'clock on Saturday morning. M. Laval and Mr. Anthony Eden are to attend, and Baron Aloisi, the Italian delegate, has expressed his intention of being present.

Viscount Cranbourne has been heading the British delegation in the absence of Mr. Eden.

It is anticipated that the League Assembly, which adjourned last week will also be summoned and probably meet on Monday or Tuesday.

It is assumed that the Council of the Council had been summoned for 10.30 o'clock on Saturday morning. M. Laval and Mr. Anthony Eden are to attend, and Baron Aloisi, the Italian delegate, has expressed his intention of being present.

Viscount Cranbourne has been heading the British delegation in the absence of Mr. Eden.

It is anticipated that the League Assembly, which adjourned last week will also be summoned and probably meet on Monday or Tuesday.

It is assumed that the Council will consider the matter in relation to Article 12 of the Covenant, providing for submission of disputes to arbitration. Should that not be heeded, then Article 16 — stipulating sanctions — will have to be studied.

The Committee of Thirteen was expected to have met yesterday afternoon.

AMERICA WILL REMAIN NEUTRAL

Speaking at the closing ceremony of the Pacific Fair at San Diego, in California, President Roosevelt on Wednesday made the following statement in regard to the international situation:

"As President of the United States, I say to you, earnestly, once more that the People and Government of this country intend and expect to remain at peace with all the world."

EXHIBITION BY P. E. F.

LONDON, Sept. 26.— An exhibition of the finds resulting from last winter's excavations at Tel el Amarna is now open in the rooms of the Palestine Exploration Fund, Manchester Square, W 1., and will remain on view until October 12.

It is hoped that as a result of the exhibition further funds will be forthcoming for the work which the Egypt Exploration Society contemplates undertaking on the same site this year.

embark on isolated action apart from the League. But if the League proves ineffective, it is inevitable that the British public will lose interest in it.

All Must Help

Should the League decide on sanctions, these must conform to two principles:

(1) Every influential country must be brought in;

(2) They must not be rendered futile by the action of non-member-States, particularly in the imposition of economic sanctions.

There is evidence to show that the United States would not be inimical to League action, and Germany is not likely to play anything but a cautious game, in order to avoid becoming involved in the dispute.

Echo of Manchuria

Countering criticism that Great Britain has acted more firmly in the present crisis than in her tolerance of Japanese aggression in Manchuria, it is emphasised that it was then impossible for the League to take action without the participation of Russia and the United States.

But, in the present case, the League is capable of dealing actively with the dispute and there is no excuse for holding back.

Lake Tsana

Lastly, it is reiterated that the British Government has conducted a policy without regard to its private interests. It is responsible for safeguarding Lake Tsana on behalf of Egypt and the Sudan.

But Great Britain's reluctance to proceed with plans for establishing a barrage on the lake proves her willingness to subordinate this interest to the general and more important demands of League policy.

HAIFA'S OIL PORT

Discharges Two Million Tons Annually

At the rate at which Mosul oil is being discharged through the new Oil Port of the Haifa harbour, the quantity loaded at the terminus may be calculated at two million tons a year, according to the Economic Supplement of "Haaretz."

From October 26, 1934, when the port was opened, to the end of March, it is estimated that 763,320 tons were discharged. The Palestine Government derives a substantial revenue from its charges for the use of the Port, the Iraq Petroleum Company, the sole user at present having undertaken to pay into the Government Exchequer at least LP.30,000 a year.

At the rate of 2d. a ton the Company will have to pay (states "Haaretz") the sum of LP.45,500 this year. When the construction of the Port is finally completed the rate will be 5d. a ton of oil loaded.

SHEIKHS SHOULD LOOK AFTER THEIR SEALS

Sheikh Ibrahim Sani' of the Tahaya tribe is suffering a great misfortune. He lost his seal on August 3 but (according to the Palestine Gazette) no new seal has been issued to him.

Another sheikh lost his seal during the past month, but his loss was recouped with the issuance of a new seal.
